

'Bats' star talks about fear, filming the latest thriller

Alfred Hitchcock had a knack for spooking his audience. In 1963 he unveiled "The Birds" giving audiences a fright as our feathered friends sought a more substantial prey than just insects and berries. The film remains just one among a dozen classic tales portraying humans as vulnerable prey for animals. Perhaps it strikes some innate fear. Perhaps it just makes for good film-making — especially around the spookiest time of year. Whatever the case, Director John Moore aims for that same natural reaction with "Bats." Scheduled for release Friday, Oct. 22, the story, written by John Logan, is set in a sleepy Texas town where unexplained bat attacks have caused several grisly deaths. At nightfall, the bats transform the town into a place where no one is safe, and there is no where to hide. "Bats" stars Lou Diamond Phillips as Sheriff Emmett Kinsey, Dina Meyer as Zoologist Sheila Casper, and Leon as her assistant. Leon, a New York City native, recently received acclaim for his role as David DuPont in "The Temptations." Audiences may remember Leon as the saint who comes to life in Madonna's video for "Like a Prayer." His big screen credits include the leading role in "Cool Runnings," and supporting characters in "Above the Rim," "Waiting to Exhale," and "Cliffhanger." On Friday, Oct. 15, Leon spoke to Observer & Eccentric newspapers about his experience with "Bats" during a telephone interview. Observer & Eccentric: How did you get involved with the film? Leon: "When my manager gave me the script I really didn't think I would necessarily do the film. My manager thought the character would show off my acting ability... I thought it would be a crowd-pleaser." Observer & Eccentric: Tell me about your character. Leon: "I play Jimmy, a computer expert who works with Sheila, an expert on bats. Basically we're doing our thing when a helicopter comes and the Centers for Disease Control informed us they needed us in Texas to investigate why animals as well as humans are being attacked by bats. It sounds very strange since bats don't attack. We got caught up in this and do our best to rectify a government experiment gone awry." Observer & Eccentric: Are you a fan of scary movies? Leon: "If it's really scary. Usually it's hard to find movies that are really scary. Today you have 'Stigmata' and 'The Sixth Sense.' They're good movies, but they're more thought-provoking (than scary)." Observer & Eccentric: Do you have a favorite horror movie? Leon: "I don't really watch horror (on video). That's something that really should be a big-screen experience. We have a sound system and a screen that's so much better. That can make a scene scare the hell out of you." Observer & Eccentric: What was most difficult or challenging about filming "Bats"? Leon: "It was all difficult. We shot pretty much all night in very remote locations, mountains, fields in Utah. It wasn't a lot of fun." Observer & Eccentric: Do you think people have an inherent fear of bats and other such animals, particularly around Halloween? Leon: "Bats are scary for some people. I don't think we know much about bats. We always fear the unknown." Observer & Eccentric: Did you learn a lot about bats while making the film? Leon: "Yes. People just don't realize how harmless they are.

They serve a great purpose in this world, as far as controlling insects." Observer & Eccentric: What did you like most about your character? Leon: "I'm pretty much the voice of the audience. If the audience says 'run,' I'm already running. I'm the one that says let's get out of here." Observer & Eccentric: Your character must provide some comic relief as well? Leon: "Most definitely. You'll definitely get a few chuckles." Look for Leon in "Bats," opening this weekend, and his future projects like NBC's upcoming drama about the early years of rock 'n' roll "The Big Heat." He'll portray the role of Jackie Wilson.
