Grandparents are Roger and Jean Waid of Rochester Hills and Jeanette Capizzo of Florida.

'Preparing for Breastfeeding' class set

The best time to learn how to care for a newborn is before the birth.

To help expectant mothers and fathers prepare for one important aspect of a baby's care, William Beaumont Hospital offers breastfeeding classes.

"Preparing for Breastfeeding" will meet 7-10 p.m. Monday, Dec. 28, at the Beaumont Medical Building - West Bloomfield, Conference Rooms A and B, 6900 Orchard Lake Road.

The class covers a variety of topics including the nutritional value of breast milk, anatomy of the breast, breastfeeding positions, advantages and disadvantages of breastfeeding, returning to work and dad's role in child care and problem solving.

Expectant mothers are encouraged to take the class between their 34th and 38th weeks of pregnancy. Fathers-to-be are also welcome to attend. The class fee is $20 for each individual or couple.

To register, or for more information, call Beaumont's Physician Referral & Information Service toll-free 1-800-633-7477.
