what they're supposed to do, we'll do OK." Salem coach Greg Woodcock said, adding he's sure the Rocks are not the favorite.

"CC is always a tough tournament team, and they're even-powered throughout their lineup. We always look forward to being somewhere in the top three or four."

The Rocks gave the Shamrocks a scare in a team dual tournament Saturday, but host Catholic Central came from behind to win the meet, 48-36.

"They were way ahead of us until about 152," Rodriguez said. "Then we starting making the turn the other way and with them. Our heavyweight locked it up. Aaron Parr pinned his opponent to win the match."

Plymouth Canton, ranked No. 3 behind CC and Salem, seems the most likely candidate to break the stranglehold those teams and Stevenson have on the title.

The Chiefs, who beat Salem in a dual, have placed in four of five tournaments to date and continue to get better, according to coach John Demick.

"I think we have a real chance at winning it," he said. "A number of competitive teams and star kids will be performing. We certainly have to wrestle well to do it, but we'd like to be first and take home the (championship) trophy."

"It's within our grasp; whether we can pull it off, we'll have to wait and see. We've wrestled enough competition that our guys are ready to go toe-to-toe with anyone."

Six reigning individual champions will be back to either defend their titles or try to win again in a different weight class.

Stevenson has two of them, including senior Josh Gunterman, who was the co-most valuable wrestler in the lower weights after winning at 112. He's 22-0 and ranked No. 1 at that weight again this year. "He's grown up quite a bit and is wrestling much more aggressively this year," Stevenson coach Joel Smith said. "This is his last year as a Stevenson Spartan; he has a goal in mind, and he's working every day toward it. With every match, he gets better."

The 162 division includes two of the area's best wrestlers, Imad Kharbush and Livonia Churchill's Mike Carter.

Carter (25-1) is ranked first and Kharbush (26-2), who is questionable due to a bruised ankle, second. Carter won the 145 title last year, and Kharbush was the 135 champion.

"It took (Carter) a while to adjust to the heavier weight, but he's coming along now and doing pretty well," Churchill coach Marty Altounian said, adding Westland John Glenzie's Chris Wolfgang will be a factor, too.

The other defending champs are Wayne Memorial's Jon Gregg, Redford Thurston's Jeff Usher and CC's Mitch Hancock, who won at 119, 140 and 152, respectively, and have moved up one weight this year.

Hancock is 27-0 and has wrestled much of the season at 171, but he has switched weights with sophomore Ryan Rogowski, who was No. 1 at 160.

"[Mitch] is focused; he's really on fire," Rodriguez said, adding Hancock is the "man to beat this year," not just in Observerland but the state. Hancock has beaten the wrestler who defeated him in the state finals last year, Rodriguez added.

CC senior Jeff Wheeler is No. 1 at 135, and sophomore Jay Abshire is a contender at 140. Senior Sean Bell (145) is hurt and won't wrestle Saturday.

"(Wheeler) is just starting to shine and believe in himself," Rodriguez said. "He found himself this year with his technique; he has great shots. He's going to be tested by CC boy (Steve Den-dron) from Salem, though."

Canton has eight individuals in the weekly rankings, including senior Kyle Pitt, who is 26-0 and No. 1 at 103. Musser, a sophomore, has a 22-5 record, and senior Jon Pocock (140) is 24-2.

"The only bad day (Pitt) had is when he major decisioned someone," Demick said. "Other than that, he's just gone through everyone."

"Jon is a very strong wrestler and, although he has some obstacles he'll have to overcome, he could take first."

"Everybody on our team can place. There are some weight classes we're not going to have a real strong showing but, really, all can place."

Garden City, which finished third last year, is fifth in the area rankings and, with eight wrestlers among the top five at their weights, is a contender to earn another team trophy. The Cougars are 11-1 in duals.

"If we wrestle well, we'll go top five, maybe," Garden City coach Dave Chiola said, adding the Cougars will be without 103-pound Scott Massey, who is away on a school field trip. "I haven't seen (CC) but other than that, we're pretty solid and they're going to be tough to beat. "This is one of my favorite tournaments, because all the coaches know each other well and it's a good, friendly competition. I look forward to it every year."

Garden City's Pat Sayn (119), Vinnie Zoccol (125) and Josh Fee (140) have more than 25 wins apiece, as does Massey. Senior Sean Bell (145) and Craig Medon (171) have over 20 each, and Brian Reed (130) might surprise some people, according to Chiola.

Stevenson's Falzon has a 23-6 record, John MacFarland (171) 22-4 and Bill Bullock (190) 20-11. The Spartans might be minus heavyweight Dan Hine, who also has a bruised ankle.

"To upset CC, we're going to have everything going in the right direction," Smith said. "That's a perfect day."

"This tournament is won and lost in the consolation finals. That brings up a lot of points when you have guys placing third and fourth."

"I would think we can finish in the top three. We're shooting for February. We try to peak then and that's the way we train. If we're lucky to be in the top three, that's a bonus."

Salem's team has sufficiently recovered from a recent bout with ring worm to be a factor in the tournament, according to Woodcock.

"From the original onset, we still have some kids out," he said. "We can't even have them in the room. We got two back who haven't been in the room for two weeks."

The Rocks are led by Ron Thompson and Josh Henderson, who are ranked first at 119 and 140, respectively. Thompson is 20-3 and Henderson 18-5. Rob Ash, who is second at 125 behind Henderson, is 24-1. Mervyn competes for Livonia Franklin now.
