He wants the world to know about his loving Jo

It may not make the New York Times best-seller list or be tabbed as future movie material, but that wasn't the aim of Ken Roberts when he self-published his book, Remember My Jo.

The Bloomfield Township resident had one intention: to tell the world what a loving person his late wife, Jo, was and how much that love meant to him.

And it was with that tunnel vision that he set out to tell anyone the story – actually, countless short stories and poems – pouring out his soul in 113 short chapters.

Determined effort

He was determined to put his thoughts on paper and in book form, even to the point of going to a quickie print shop to make copies of his typeset book pages, a method guaranteed to cost a mint and deliver very few copies.

Eventually he got some sound advice and wound up finding a company willing to print his book. Although he only has had 1,000 copies printed so far and has spent $30,000, he has mailed some copies to celebrities and is hoping somehow the project will soar higher than the P-39 Airacobra fighter planes he piloted in the South Pacific in World War II.

"I want everybody in the world to know about my book and about Jo," he said, during an interview dominated by anecdotes about his beloved, items chronicled in his 323-page paperback. The book sells for $20 at Barnes & Noble in Bloomfield Township and through the company's website: (http://shop.barnesandnoble.com/boo) and also on the website of the Jenkins Group, Inc. of Traverse City (http://www.bigbookbuys.com/action).

He is also trying to get a company to produce the book on tape.

Roberts' synopsis of the book on the Barnes & Noble site says "Jo was a wonderful child, a fantastic teenager and a beautiful young lady. She stopped aging for me. I loved her that much. The stories tell about the love she radiated her entire life, an inspiration to all who knew her. Please tip-toe through her life with me, she desired a quiet journey on a loving path. This adorable lady gave me a life that even surpassed magnificent. I love you, Jo. See you in heaven."

Nostalgic look

Anyone over 40 who reads the book should be able to relate to the history, the old photos (more than 100), and the friends and relatives who crossed the Roberts' paths and had an effect on their lives. They are likely to strike a chord with anyone who has grown up in southeast Michigan.

Jo's maiden name was Savage and the couple met when she was 16 and worked at an ice cream shop at Hamilton and Seward in Detroit just prior to WW II. They soon fell in love and her love letters helped sustain Roberts during the war. They were married after the war, on June 1, 1946, at Our Lady of the Rosary Church in Detroit.

Chrysler employees

Both worked for Chrysler Corp., her for 30 years as an executive secretary and he for 20 years as a technician. He also worked at a Marathon Oil refinery. Along the way, the couple managed to invent a toy in 1960 called "Solar Orbit." They built the first 8,000 in their garage and spent a lot of money for TV commercials. The couple made some money from the toy, but a distributing deal went bad, Roberts said, and they walked away from the whole thing.

"Thankfully, we had kept our day jobs," he wrote in his book. "Jo and I found out in business who our real friends were. Some who we thought would help didn't and some we were not sure of came through for us. Sad to say, some hoped we wouldn't strike it rich. I'm sure heaven won't be like that, all good people. Jo always rejoiced at anyone's success and she taught me to do the same."

His wife, Roberts said, "never said a bad word," even to the point of not wanting to say dam when talking of Hoover Dam: "She called it the Hoover Power Plant." Also, he said, she didn't want to refer to her mother by her name, Helen, because she didn't want to say "hell."

She died July 8, 1996, after catching pneumonia following hospitalization with a broken hip, Roberts said, and a couple months later he called the nuns at St. Owen Church in Bloomfield Hills to visit him to talk about Jo.

"I asked them about Purgatory," he said, "and they said Jo went through Purgatory so fast."

Catholics believe everyone destined for heaven first spends time in Purgatory for their sins.

Roberts' book theme could be found in the last sentence of the first chapter: "I feel sure that God would want you to know about my Jo and try to live your life as much like she did as you can."

Roberts welcomes phone calls about his book. Anyone interested can call him at 248-626-8157.

SENIOR ADULT HAPPENINGS

The City of Farmington Hills senior adult division announces upcoming activities.

Book discussion group: Join friends and neighbors for lively, informal book discussions on the first Thursday of each month at 1 p.m. at the Farmington Hills Senior Center. Paperback copies will be available in advance for check-out. Fee is 50 cents for residents, $1 for non-residents per session. May 4 book is "The Spectator Bird" by Wallace Stegner. The June 1 book is "Pope Joan" by Donna Woolfolk Cross.

Festival of the Arts Senior Day: Once again, the festival of the arts will offer a complimentary senior day, "Seniors Celebrate the Arts," on Friday, May 5. The day includes prizes, a treasure hunt, dancing to a big band jazz band, lunch and a variety show/concert by Hammell Music. Pre-registration is necessary.

Glory in the Flower: Whether it's a back door spot or a meadow, city naturalist Joe Derek shows how to landscape with glorious wildflowers. Catch spring fever on Tuesday, May 9, at 10:30 a.m. Pre-registration is necessary. $2.

What's in a name? May 23 at 1 p.m. take a look at Detroit's by-gone days with Mary Ellen Busch of the Detroit Historical Society and Museum. In a pleasantly gossipy fashion, "What's in a name?" talks about the people Detroit streets were named after. Raspberry chantilly, a special springtime dessert, will be served following the program. Pre-registration is necessary as there is a limit of 25 persons. $3.

Student/senior adult prom: The ninth annual spring dance for local high school students and senior adults will be held on Thursday, May 25, from 3:30-5:30 p.m. at a new location, the Farmington High School. The dance is complimentary to all seniors and includes music, dancing and refreshments. For registration call 489-3333.

It's a party: Celebrate Americana in the "good old summertime." Take a musical walk down memory lane with the Oakland County Parks song and dance show on Tuesday, June 20, at noon. Enjoy lunch and a nostalgic dessert – Boston cooler or root beer float. Cool stuff for sizzling days. Advance ticket purchase necessary, limited to 200. $4.

MPRO - Patient's rights: Have you ever been rushed out of the hospital? Questioned the quality of your care? Michigan Peer Review Organization will be at the Senior Center on Tuesday, June 6, at 10:30 a.m. to address these concerns and help you ensure high quality health care. Pre-registration is necessary.

The Costick Center is at 28600 11 Mile Road west of Middlebelt.
