oceans. He featured Scandinavian music in January, and French music this month. In addition to Franck, the March program includes Jules Massenet's "Phaedra Overture," Ravel's "Bolero," and Wagner playing Saint-Saëns' "Organ Symphony No. 3."

Wagner is taking a break from his busy schedule to perform the work with the Livonia Symphony Orchestra. In addition to programming classical music for KMZT in Los Angeles (which can be found on the Internet at www.kmzart.com), Wagner has been performing around town to raise money for a new studio organ for Madonna University's growing organ and church music department. Wagner is an associate professor of music at the University in Livonia.

Classical music lovers will remember Wagner best from the nearly two decades he was program director for WGRS-FM, where he also hosted nationwide broadcasts of the Detroit Sym-

"Saint-Saëns' "Organ Symphony No. 3" is a great piece," said Wagner who played it with the Warren Symphony four years ago. "It uses organ as both a solo instrument and as a member of the orchestra. It has pretty chamber moments where the organ appears out of the orchestra. There's a dialogue back and forth."

Wagner, who also directs the Madonna University Chorale, which is performing 3 p.m. Sunday, April 29 at Christ Our Savior Lutheran Church in Livonia, likes the idea of playing the organ symphony on all French programs.

"I think it's a terrific idea to do a program with them and they'll all fit together. Maestro Shulak is making a connection with the 20th century. Some of the pieces are easily recognizable and the other pieces they don't know will be accessible."

Web site changes

There have been a few changes since last Sunday's column on artists with Web sites. Kara Marase and husband Todd are changing theirs due to difficulties with their service provider, The Internet Ramp, since it was bought out by OneMain. They made the decision to switch after their site was down for more than 10 days. Their new addresses are www.karamarase.com and www.marase.com (Todd's site). Kara's site has not been completely set up yet.

COTS is that but for the grace of God go I. But even if you forget about the adults and can't imagine yourself in that situation, what they're doing for kids is what gets to me. They're providing them with a stable home and the opportunity to go to school. They're giving homeless people the basics so eventually they can self-actualize."

Robert Steele did exactly that. He went from living on the streets to becoming a designer at Exhibit Works, even though the services provided by COTS weren't available then. But if COTS had offered its emergency shelter and transitional programs such as training and job placement, it would have made Steele's life a lot easier to turn around.

Beginnings

Founded 19 years ago, COTS served 110,000 meals, provided 50,000 shelter nights and filled 5,000 jobs with homeless people in 2000. It takes money to do that. Last year's auction raised nearly $115,000 to help not only men and women but children. This year COTS spokeswoman Beth McKown hopes to raise $135,000 by auctioning off masks by celebrities, designers and Ford Motor Co. executives, such as Edsel Ford and Jacques Nasser. Ford Corporation Design is presenting sponsor for this year's auction and Lincoln Mercury will donate a two-year lease on a Lincoln LS as the first place prize in a raffle.

And what's even more special is that people from all over the metro Detroit area are coming together to make the auction a success. So if you're looking for a piece of art to brighten up your walls and want to feel good all at the same time, bid on one of the masks meant to make homelessness a thing of the past.
