least philosophically, will be able to come up with four solid players and be more competitive.

"I have a feeling teams like ours that have an extremely solid first four will benefit. Every one of them is capable of shooting a sub-par round."

Miner chose to keep 16 of the 28 boys who tried out for the team, because there was just a three-stroke difference between the Nos. 7 and 16 players.

"Historically, we made the cut after three days," Miner said, adding an average of 45-46 was enough to make the team in the past. "This year the 16th player is shooting 43.3."

"Something has happened. I'm not sure what it is, but it's a good sign. The players coming up are a little stronger and understanding the game better."

Others who could see some playing time include junior Jason Welch, a new player who will "be a solid No. 5 or 6 if he keeps playing the way he is," according to Miner.

Junior Adam Ellis will challenge for one of the top six spots with senior Matt Ryder and junior Aaron Cole.

"We have a lot of players who look like they spent some time on the course and played some matches over the summer," Miner said.

The Falcons also finished fourth in a regional tournament and missed qualifying for the state finals by three strokes.

"I think we're strong enough, if everybody contributes as I think they can, to qualify this year," Miner said. "Certainly, if the first four continue to play consistently all year long, we should have no problem."

Farmington Harrison

The Hawks have one of the top players in the area, maybe the state, in senior Matt Lee, a perennial member of the All-

Matt Lee

Observer team and a state qualifier. He averaged 38.6 in duels.

"I think he's probably one of the top 15 or 20 golfers in the state," Harrison coach Bill Spencer said. "He's had a lot of tournament experience. He played in about 15 this summer."

Lee was the medalist in a Division 2 regional last year, but he failed to make the cut at state.

With another year of experience behind him, Lee could be a contender for the state title.

"I think he has a shot at it," Spencer said. "He's going to have more good rounds than poor rounds, but any golfer knows the not-so-good round is out there and you have to guard against it."

"He learned from the past; a good golfer does. He likes playing the away course. The test of a good golfer is when you can go away and play well."

The Hawks had no seniors last year, so they should have a competitive team with experience. Senior Junichi Miura, who played in all 17 matches, dropped his average from 42 to somewhere in the 30s. Sophomore David Koch also played a lot and earned a letter while averaging 44.

"He's hitting the ball farther and scoring better," Spencer said.

Junior Chris Fitzgerald is another top returnee, averaging 44 while playing in 13 matches.

"He works at San Marino (Golf Course) and plays a lot of golf," Spencer said.

Other players who could help are John Kluka, Joey Graves, Matt Kjolhede, Danny Doig and Paul Mazanka.

Harrison was around 500 in dual matches and finished 11th in the 12-team WAAA meet.

"Our expectations are always high," Spencer said. "We have three tournaments this week. By Friday, we'll have a pretty good handle where we stand."

North Farmington

The bad news is also the good news for the Raiders.

"We've got a very young team," coach Bruce Sutton said of his sophomore-led squad. "But we've got everybody back from last year except one player."

The player is Mike Patterson, who graduated. His role as the leading golfer should be taken by senior captain Brian Bober.

"He finished No. 3 on the team last year," Sutton said. "He did a lot of work on his game during the winter and summer. He's playing good golf at this time."

Sophomores Aaron Newman and Scott Moscow are among the top three golfers entering the start of play this season.

"We play three tournaments this week, so we should find out how the team is by this weekend," Sutton said.

Newman is already tournament-tested from summer play. "I do know he played in a couple of tournaments, and I look for him to be a very strong player for us this year," Sutton said.

Moscow "just kind of came out of nowhere and is playing very good golf at this time. We've got another senior, Randy Yu, who is playing very well for us, too. So is sophomore Vince McKeon."

"I have very high expectations for the team, if they use the course to their advantage and play smart," Sutton said. "Hopefully, we'll be competitive with the other teams."
