TRUE DEVOTION HERS.

True devotion has been shown by an English lady, a Miss Russell, who was governess in the family of the unfortunate M. Lopukhin, head of the police department in St. Petersburg, Russia, at the time of Premier Stolypin's assassination. Following that terrible occurrence, the unfortu-nate man was condemned to life-long exile in the wilds of Siberia, on a charge of divulging official secrets.

Miss Russell, who maintains an unswerving belief in the ill-starred official's honor, is voluntarily sharing their exile with Mme. Lopukhin and her daughters.
