Surrendering Yourself
When a man and woman are joined together in matrimony and become one, they are in a sense surrounding their lives to each other. They are making a commitment to love and devoting their lives for the betterment of each other. A loving marriage is more "we" and less "I," and each partner should act and behave for the good of both. A loving relationship involves many aspects of acceptance, understanding, and most of all, supporting each other to make the bonds of love stronger. Just as a husband and wife should yield to each other, we should also surrender our lives to our Heavenly Father. We are called to be witnesses and ambassadors for our Lord, and the way in which we behave and live our lives should be a good example for the glory of God. We should all try to exhibit "God-like qualities" that reflect God's love for us. God wants us to have a successful life, and when we are submissive and include Him in our activities, He will bless us eternally with His everlasting love.
Be subject to one another out of reverence for Christ. R.S.V. Ephesians 5:21
