UCC teens help Habitat for Humanity

Several teen members of Salem United Church of Christ in downtown Farmington recently joined about 250 other youth from across the nation in Habitat for Humanity's effort to help repair homes of the less fortunate along with TeenServe and Tipton Habitat.

"It was pretty awesome to see that these kids pay money to come there and work. They worked their butts off." The youth at the church help others through Habitat for Humanity each summer, Nickels said.

"They all had to raise their own money to go and we had fund-raisers for it," Nickels said. "It was pretty awesome to see that these kids pay money to
