Cultivating Patience

Our modern world makes instant gratification a virtue. Instant food, instant success, and money at the push of a button are all hallmarks of our society's need to give us what we want with little or no waiting. Our needs and desires may thereby be satisfied more easily, but the discipline of patience suffers in the bargain. We can hardly imagine working on a project that might last a few years, let alone a few decades. Centuries ago, the people who started work on the great medieval cathedrals of Europe knew that they would not live to see them completed, but they had the patience and steadfastness to continue their work, nonetheless. Jacob worked patiently for his future father-in-law for 14 years to win the hand of his beloved Rachel. The greatest achievements in life are usually difficult and require patience and discipline. Cultivate patience in the small things in your life, such as your relationships and in your work, and it will reward you in the big things as well.

And let yourself/james here its full effect, that you may be perfect and complete, lacking in nothing. E.S.V. James 1:4
