

Women in History

CAMPUS PIPELINE

Walsh 4.0s

Eugene Miller, recently retired chairman, president and CEO of Comerica Inc. and Comerica Bank, received the honorary Doctor of Laws degree and presented the keynote address for Walsh College's winter commencement ceremony on Saturday, January 25, 2003 at the Zion facility next to the Walsh College Fry campus.

The ceremony graduated 510 people, 243 bachelor's candidates - half with honors, those achieving a 3.5 grade point average or better. Six students had perfect 4.0 grade point averages among them. James Geoffrey, of Farmington Hills, Master of Science in Management and Mary Beth Martino, of Farmington Hills, MBA.

The Walsh College Alumni Association hosted a reception at the College immediately following the ceremony.
