Don't Let Your Talents Rust
 Most of us have a particular talent for something. Some of us are creative, while some are good with people, and others may have a talent for mechanical things. Whatever our talents may be - most of us do have more than one - it is important for each of us to develop them to their fullest. One of the saddest of missed opportunities is not fully developing our talents because we may miss out on a more fulfilled life. The American poet and abolitionist John Greenleaf Whittier wrote, "For of all sad words of tongue or pen, the saddest are those: 'It might have been!' Although our talents may be modest, rest assured that we are all good at something, even if we are not sure exactly where our talents lie. Psychologists have developed aptitude tests to an exact science, and it is easy enough to find out what we are good at if we don't already know. We should all do some thinking about what we are good at, or perhaps take a test, then develop a plan for putting our talents to good use.

Every one to whom much is given, of him will much be required.
 R.S.V. Luke 12:48
