'The Front Page' Scores Detroit Hit

ROGER PRYOR AND WILVA DAVIS in a scene from the fascinating newspaper comedy, "THE FRONT PAGE", which has scored a tremendous hit at the Wilson Theatre, Detroit.

JED HARRIS SUCCESS AT WILSON THEATRE IS "TALK OF THE TOWN"

Capacity audiences and thunderous applause tell the story of Detroit's surrender to "The Front Page" at the Wilson Theatre. The breath-taking thrills and uproarious fun of this high tension newspaper farce makes a Crusader of every person who witnesses it and Producer Jed Harris is now reaping a rich box office harvest from the throngs of those who attended the early performances. But despite the heavy demand for seats good locations are still available at the box office. The large capacity of the Wilson Theatre protects late comers against disappointment.

Written by Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur and staged by George S. Kaufman, all newspaper men of wide experience and prominent writers in other fields. "The Front Page" is an uproarious farce, peopled with authentic newspapermen and genuine newspaper atmosphere. The play has for its setting the pressroom of the criminal courts building in Chicago. On the rise of the curtain six reporters are seen slouching about, awaiting the execution of a condemned Red. They berate the sheriff for his delays, plague the warden and the other officials by their noise and arguments, and finally center their fires on one of their fellows, Hildy Johnson, a reporter who enters slightly ginned to announce that he is through with the newspaper racket, and that he is leaving within a few hours for New York with his girl and her mother, where he is to be married and go in for a tony job in an advertising agency.

Just as he is about to depart to the razzing words of his late associates pandemonium breaks loose. The condemned man has made a miraculous escape, thanks to the stupidity of the sheriff. Rifle shots ring out, reporters scurry to the manhunt, and Johnson, left alone in the room, cannot resist the call to phone his own paper and join in the big story.

The authors, Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur, have contrived screamingly comic situations in the episodes that swiftly develop in the manhunt. A child is born in a patrol wagon. Innocent deputies are shot down by the manhunters in their promiscuous shooting. Johnson's prospective mother-in-law is locked up at the instigation of his infuriated managing editor. The city is terrorized. The sheriff swears in all of his relatives to track down the criminal. The criminal is captured and hidden. These are but a few of the high lights with which the plot is crammed.

The New Basement

Among the radical changes in homes wrought during the past few years, the improvement of the basement is noteworthy. That part of the home gradually has become a light, airy and warm room, instead of the damp, murky place of other years. It has become livable, instead of merely tolerable.

Another convenient improvement for your basement would be an extension telephone. When the telephone rings upstairs, and you are in the basement, it would be much easier to take the call without climbing the stairs!
