TIME

If time be of all things most precious, wasting time must be the greatest prodigality, since lost time is never found again; and what we call time enough always proves little enough. Let us then be up and doing, and doing to a purpose, so by diligence shall we do more with less perplexity.—Benjamin Franklin.

SAFETY MEANS SAVING

These two words are really the same word. Safety from accidents means putting more money in the bank and not having to draw any of it out to pay the doctor. Along with the habit of safety in one's work goes the habit of caution and good judgment in all one's affairs—the habit of putting one's money in a safe place and watching it grow, rather than risk it on a wild-cat speculation, in which the only man who makes any thing is the glib promoter.

It is the legitimate and proper ambition of every American to earn a comfortable living, have a steady job, enjoy a happy, healthy family life, and make some provision for his old age. Every one of these things is more likely to come to the man who accepts the principles of safety and who practices safety every day and hour of his life.

MOTORIST RESCUES CARS FROM SWOLLEN STREAMS

Some idea of the hardships imposed on motorists during the recent floods and rains in the southwest may be gained from the experience of H. C. Simmons, of Dallas, district manager for a

New Jersey machinery manufacturer.

On a trip in a four-speed Graham-Paige, from Austin to Dallas, Mr. Simmons passed 300 stranded cars, and rescued three other cars by pushing them out of swollen streams.

It is claimed the young people are neglecting physical culture, but anyway they seem willing to dance until 3 a. m. in the good cause.

Working aggressively together in unity, any town can do wonders.
