PRESS CARD GAMES ARE ENDED AT WHITE HOUSE

Press correspondents who cover the White House have been deprived of their card games in the press room while waiting for news breaks. Ever since the first press room at the White House was established under President Roosevelt, reporters have indulged themselves harmlessly in a round of bridge or a few rounds of "cobn can"—anything, in fact, that did not require the use of chips. President Coolidge sometimes watched the games over players' shoulders and even vouchsafed an occasional remark. The callers of President Hoover, however, have been unable to reconcile their notions of Presidential surroundings with the atmosphere of the press room which is next to the callers' room, and last week the games were stopped by request. It was indicated that when the executive wing of the White House has been enlarged card tables hidden from public gaze might be set up for the benefit of bored newspapermen.

A REAL "COWBOY" RODEO PLANNED AT THE FAIR

The life that the cowboy boys followed with its hazardous work and equally dangerous games will be lived again, with no decrease in its thrills, in the rodeo which will be the outstanding entertainment attraction at the Michigan State Fair, September 1 to 7.

The rodeo will be the first of its type seen in this section of the country. Performances will be given each afternoon and evening. It will be on a plane with those that have become famous as yearly events at Calgary, Cheyenne and Pendleton. A large number of cowboys, cowgirls and Indians will take part. Many of the men riders are champions, following years of competition. All are veterans of the old cattle days. A number of the cowgirls are world champions in their own right.

Three of the main events, bronco-busting, steer-bull-dogging, and the chuck-wagon races, have never been seen in this section in the fashion in which they have actually occurred as part of the work, danger and play on the cattle ranches. The broncos used in the bucking and wagon racing have never been tamed to harness and the steers used in the bull-dogging are Brahmas, a cross between the Texas longhorn and the sacred bull of India, and possesses the greatest fighting spirit of any breed of cattle.

WRONG METHODS MAKE BUYERS SHUN MUTTON

Something is wrong with methods of merchandizing meat in the United States when the records show that for every pound of mutton eaten the public buys 10 pounds of more of both beef and pork and one pound of veal, and Michigan State College is aiding flock owners to hold a series of meetings to call attention to the value of mutton as a food. —M. The Old Folks At Home

IN the annual harvest, summer's labors crystallize into profits. With the gathering of the crops come happy scenes of reunion and "harvest homes"—such scenes as inspired Stephen Foster to write "The Old Folks at Home," one of the world's most noted songs. At harvest time this year, therefore, we picture the Foster homestead at Pittsburgh, Pa., as it looked 79 years ago, when the song was written.

Gathered crops—that's it. For if the crop isn't gathered it won't last long, and it's the same way with money. Save a portion of the fruits of your labors—that you may have the needed funds when emergency or opportunity comes your way. An account with us will help in the judicious spending and the saving.
