

BERNARD SHAW PLAYS TO BE GIVEN AT THE WILSON THEATRE SOON

Of significant importance to lovers of good drama is the announcement from the Theatre Guild of New York that that famous organization will give two of Bernard Shaw's plays, "Major Barbara" and "Pygmalion," at the Wilson Theatre in Detroit, the weeks of September 23 and 30. One of the most capable casts ever assembled by the Guild for an acting company is to present these two comedies, and will include Frieda Inescort, who last year played Portia to George Arliss' Shylock, Dudley Digges, one of the country's most famous actors and stage directors, Elliott Cabot, Percy Warram, Phyllis Connard, Edgar Kent, Winnifred Hanley, Ruby Hallier and many others.

"Major Barbara," to be presented the first week, is a farcical comedy involving the clashing of the codes of idealism and capitalism and has proven of high entertainment worth, not only because of its novel and timely theme, but also from its providing much after-theatre meditation. In this play there is pronounced the Shavian theory that poverty is the most despicable—indeed the worst—of all crimes and the foremost duty of every one is to avoid it, "by whatever means."

Andrew Undershaft, one of the central characters, is a cold, hard, worldly munition maker with the saving grace of sweet cynicism. His belief that money is the key to all happiness comes into sharp—but always entertaining—conflict with the high moral principles of his idealistic daughter, Barbara, a Salvation Army worker. Just where their contrasting viewpoints reach an amicable adjustment furnishes the theme of the play.

In "Pygmalion," to be given the second week, also with the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees, one finds one of Shaw's most brilliant, penetrating and thoroughly entertaining comedies. The story pokes gentle jibes at social differences—shafts of amusing ridicule of which Shaw is so highly capable. Eliza Doolittle, a gutter girl with a soul for better things, is raised to the status of a lady by a professor of phonetics who theorizes that one can change a woman's accent, but not her essential birthplace in the world. Throughout the play are the amusing observations of Alfred Doolittle, the girl's father, a philosophizing dandyman, who injects rare humor into the play with viewpoints of "the underserving poor."

"Pygmalion," like "Major Barbara," is assessed of rare comedy situations and his dialogue as sparkling as any to be found in the Shaw group. Moreover, with its fast moving action, it offers many fine roles to its actors and has proven one of the hardest of modern writings for the theatre.

TO OPEN GARAGE

A new garage will be opened in Farmington on October 1. Carey Coe of North Farmington and an associate will occupy the building on Thomas street formerly occupied by Al J. Laing and will carry on a general repair business.

Two Good Reasons

For Closing School

Farmington High School students are grateful for two events which will relieve them of school work Friday afternoon.

One is the first football game of the season, which will be played at Cooley High School, Detroit. The other is Farmington Day at the Wayne County Fair at Northville. School will be out at noon.

NOVI TOWNSHIP MAN IS KILLED BY TRAIN

Hurled against a shanty alongside the crossing when his truck was hit by a passenger train on the Grand Trunk Railway crossing at the gravel pit near New Hudson, Fred Schubert was instantly killed about 11:30 Friday morning.

Mr. Schubert, a patmaster in Novi Township, had been to the gravel pit and received a load of gravel stopping at the entrance to the grounds to give the watchman his ticket, he started on. The watchman noticed the train as Mr. Schubert pulled away and yelled at him but apparently he was not understood. The engine of the train which left Walpole Lake about 11:15, about 15 minutes later than usual, hit the truck on the door throwing Mr. Schubert out the opposite side against a small building, killing him instantly.

He resided on the south shore of Walpole Lake with Mrs. Schubert who with a son and a daughter survive. The son and daughter are both married and live in Detroit.

PREPARE FOR WINTER

Automobile drivers will be able to stop at icy crossings and on slippery hills in Farmington this winter due to the foresight of Street Commissioner Amos Otis. Mr. Otis recommended to the Commission at its meeting Monday evening that about four yards of dry sand be purchased and put aside for bad weather. The Commission approved the suggestion.

Gullen Brothers, who have had extensive holdings in West Point Park, have traded their interests in the development at Farmington and Seven-Mile roads, for Detroit property.

BIDS ASKED

District No. 3 Fr. Farmington (Clarenceville Schools), asks bids on the following:

1. Cost of man grubbing and operating a school bus on a flat salary basis, bus to be new Ford, new Chevrolet, or other new chassis agreeable to Board of Education. Bus must drive 3 trips per day, probably about 42 to 45 miles, starting at 7:15 a. m. commencing work at about 5 p. m. Body to be Wayne 220-E, 230-E, or 240-E. Truck chassis must have extension to enable it to handle the longer bodies. In making bids, specify cost of each of above bodies, kind of chassis used, whether single or dual rear tires and monthly price, also terms contracted for.

2. Salary of man to do above driving if district owns bus and hires a driver only, and if other school work will make this a full-time job ten months in year.

3. Bids on man to do janitor work—specially sweeping and dusting—of 15-room school. This includes winter sweeping, mopping, etc., and is a full time job, ten or eleven months of the year. Make bids on monthly basis for seven-month year.

FINE DISPLAY OF FLOWERS PLEASES MANY AT EXHIBIT

Extent And Variety Surprised Visitors; Unique Ideas Are Developed

A display that surprised and delighted visitors greeted them at Farmington's first flower show last Thursday afternoon and evening. Most of those in attendance were astonished to find no great variety of flowers exhibited in a community of this size.

Besides the unusual beauty of the flowers, there were several unique displays. Dr. H. Addison Leeson showed a very cleverly fashioned garden of two squashes, but many thought it was only one. He also displayed a wheelbarrow of tempting vegetables, which he called "the pastor's golf score." The Salvation Evangelical Church had an unusual exhibit. A piece of plate glass provided a lake, and equally ingenious devices formed a bridge, grass, trees and other parts of a pastoral scene. A piece of belling made a smooth highway over the bridge.

Supper was served to over 200 by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Farmington Methodist Church.

Prize winners were:

1. Annuals: 1st, Thomas & Son; 2nd, Mrs. Durham; 3rd, Margaret Carl.

NEW JEWELRY BUSINESS IS OPENED IN REDFORD

The largest jewelry store in the Grand River section will be opened in Redford Friday morning by Ehrlich's chain jewelry concern of Detroit. The new store will be the seventh in the Ehrlich chain.

Many attractive offerings are made in celebration of the opening. The Ehrlich jewelry business was begun in a small store on Adams avenue in Detroit years ago by M. H. Ehrlich, and the firm has grown to become one of the large businesses of its kind in the State. Associated with M. H. Ehrlich is his son Harold Ehrlich, who has been in charge of preparation for the Redford store opening.

DAY OFFICER DISCUSSED
