A City of New Telephone Buildings

IN 1926, the Michigan Bell Telephone Company entered upon the largest expansion program in its history. The intervening three years have witnessed the engineering and construction of 25 new telephone buildings and major building additions throughout the state.

Grouped together, these structures, housing thousands of telephone workers and millions of dollars' worth of equipment, would make an imposing "business city."

But this building construction represents only a portion of the extension of telephone plant by this Company during that period. Total expenditures for telephone plant expansion in Michigan the past three years were $72,000,000, greatly increasing facilities and improving the service. This is a continuing program, for as business and social activities increase, demand for still greater telephone expansion develops.

This plant expansion and improvement would be meaningless if it were not translated into terms of service and a desire to afford increasing telephone comfort, convenience and satisfaction, and to meet the growing needs of the state.

Our policy—"To continue to furnish the best possible telephone service at the lowest cost consistent with financial safety"
