"BARGAINS" IN FOUNTAIN PENS—AND TRICK NAMES

This coupon and only 68c entitles you to a regular $3 Blank fountain pen, if interested within two weeks of the date stamped thereon.

This so called Blank fountain pen bears a name almost identical to that of a well known, advertised, standard pen. Only a letter, or perhaps a mere syllable, is changed.

Particularly at the holiday season of the year, these "fountain pen rackets" to prey unfairly on the public and on well-known standard makes of pens. Sometimes the "value" of the pen is stamped thereon, in order to bait the prospective customer into believing he is getting an extraordinary bargain.

The real value of such pens is approximately the cash outlay necessary to obtain them. The "coupon" is just part of the scenery and the trick name the most important part of all. By swallowing a syllable, or twisting a letter, the "hawker" of these pens hopes you will believe them to be something they are not.

FARM ACCOUNTS KEPT WITH LITTLE EFFORT

Only two hours to set up the inventory and 14 minutes each week for entries are needed to keep a complete book account of the average Michigan farm business, according to the farm management department at Michigan State College.

Two thousand farm account books printed last year by the College and sold at cost to farmers failed to meet the demands. Organized groups in 38 counties contained 859 men who were given personal instruction in farm accounts by specialists from the College.

The farm account books made it possible for the farmer to determine the returns from his business, profit or loss, and his labor income. The keeping of books does not directly increase farm receipts but it does allow the farmer to find which farm practices gain or lose money, and he is able to change his methods to avoid the losing enterprises.

The College has printed 7,000 books this year to supply the increase in demand. These will be sold by the farm management department and by county agricultural agents for 20 cents each.

CAR TIPS OVER, OCCUPANTS ALL ESCAPE INJURY

Joseph Brangar of Walled Lake with his son in law and daughter and three children, Mr. and Mrs. J. Z. Perin of Indianapolis, all escaped injury Tuesday when their car driven by Mr. Perin turned on its side after skidding. Mr. Perin was bringing Mr. Brangar to Walled Lake from Detroit, where he is living with his daughter, Mrs. Lena Mathewson, when the right rear wheel got off the edge of the pavement. In attempting to get back on he threw the car in such a manner that it skidded across to the other side of the road and gently rolled over on its side. Mrs. Perin suffered a bruised shoulder and her daughter a cut lip. The car was not damaged and not a pane of glass was broken.
