CLINGS TO HIS CANOE, SAVED FROM DROWNING

SAVED FROM DROWNING

Curtis Beckman of Saginaw, Mich., who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Beckman at Walled Lake for the past week escaped drowning in the lake by minutes on Monday morning.
After clinging to an overturned canoe for nearly half an hour, he was rescued by Floyd Parmalee just before he lost his hold on the craft. His legs were numb from the cold water and he was suffering considerably from exposure to the heavy wind which was blowing, but recovered from the accident without serious results.
He had taken the canoe out for his first time with a craft of this kind, and the high waves tipped the canoe over. He managed to cling to one end and was finally noticed by Mrs. E. M. Gray, who called the plight of the lad to the attention of Mr. Parmalee. By the time Mr. Parmalee reached him, the canoe had drifted nearly half way-across the lake.
