HANDS BURNING, ITCHING

905 Lowell Place, Chicago, Ill.—
"The trouble began by my hands burning and itching and I rubbed and scratched them till one day I saw little red sores coming out. My hands were disfigured and swollen and I couldn't work. I tried everything but nothing helped. I then saw an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used warm water with the Cuticura Soap and after that I put the Cuticura Ointment on my hands three times a day for about five or six months when I was cured. (Signed) Sam MARRIOTT, No. 28, 1911, Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free with 25c. Cuticura Book. Address: Post-card, Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston, Adv."

FRONTIER MEDICAL LIST.

In good old frontier days castor oil was the principal medical beverage—good full measure, too. Only the biggest person could hold a whole dose—uncut with a dipper, with half a dipper of New Orleans molasses added to help stick it down and make it taste good, only it didn't taste good. In these historic days every old woman with a doctor and gathered her own "jarbs" in the woods and knew how to mix up medical messes that would stir the vitals of a brass monkey or a cast-iron dog. All back-woodsmen believed in "jarbs" doctrine. Something in "jarbs," that.

SOCIETY.

Mrs. Wayrup—No wonder I look worried, my dear husband has just gone out and if he is discovered it will probably cost us our social position.

Mrs. Elmer—Goodness! Where is he?

Mrs. Wayrup—He has gone out in cog. to pay a bill—Puck.

It always costs more to acquire a grudge than it is worth.

The SUITORS OF MR. MERRIWOLD BY KENNETH HARRIS

MELISSA WOULD LIKE TO BE A SAILOR'S BRIDE.

Mrs. Merriwold dropped into a comfortable chair with a sigh of relief and took a comfortable cup of tea from the tray that her maid had just brought in. She was sitting in a white tulle blouse trimmed with Oxford blue, from the collar of which a silver boatswain's whistle depended by a snowy lanyard. Her hat, skirt and shoes were also white, and her face was pale as a lily.

"You are simply a child, Melissa," said her maternal maiden aunt Jane, "a pleasing sight, I trust, doubtless, but this tea tray is not a revolving spectacle. It's certainly good to sit down and not have to trouble about adjusting one's center of gravity to a bicyclist's eccentric motion. Still, it might have been worse, and Captain Reefer was just as lovely as he could be; and if I put on plenty of cold cream, I don't peel off so very badly. One thing, if I ever marry again, I'm going to marry a sailor."

"I'm glad you've made up your mind at last," said Aunt Jane, with mild sarcasm. "I suppose I ought to be grateful that you don't insist on accounting for anything you take into your head."

"Why, auntie!" remonstrated Mrs. Merriwold, "how cruelly unjust! But still, there may be something in that burglar idea. You always hear of burglars as perfect models of husbands. They are cracked and when the small eyes broke, a white matter would come out. I could not do any hard work; if I did the sores would come out worse. For two years no body could cure my extremities until one day I thought I would try the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used warm water with the Cuticura Soap and after that I put the Cuticura Ointment on my hands three times a day for about five or six months when I was cured. Is that they never know who they are tell him. And I know that he's got plenty to tell me, so that we won't run out of topics of conversation in the two or three weeks of regular conversation that are to follow. If it were four weeks, of course, it wouldn't be quite so enjoyable, and we might get to squabbling in six; but in three weeks at the outside that's best. I shall be sleeping scolding tears as I pack his clean shirts in his sea chest."

"If you really loved him, you would want him with you all the time," said Aunt Jane, with a smile.

"Of course," agreed Mrs. Merriwold. "We always wanted green apples and asinine cocktails and things that are not at all good for us, and if I didn't have anything, I'd want to want something. So there you are and looking at it by and large and allow and admit, I think I'll marry a sailor."

"Not Captain Reefer!" exclaimed Aunt Jane. You don't tell me that."

"Not by any means, dear," replied Mrs. Merriwold. "Captain Reefer only has a two-weeks' run to Buffalo, and he would return unperceived by train at any time. No, I really don't think that Captain Reefer would do at all."
