EDUCATION

"The education of children should not be forced, like the growth of plants in the hothouse. The more haste in this matter, the less speed in the end. It is from too early forcing the intellect, from premature, precocious mental growth, that we see in modern times, so many cases of wilted and feeble, and sickly children or of remarkable, wonderful children, who grow up to be prodigies by their second or third year and die by the next."—Tryon Edwards.

Old Neighbors Meet.

Again After 50 Years

Mrs. Kate Pettibone of Farmington and the parents of Charles Wedow of Walled Lake were neighbors many years ago, living on farms northwest of Farmington. Yet Mrs. Pettibone and Mr. Wedow had not seen each other in 50 years, though living only 10 miles from each other, until last Friday when Mr. Wedow paid a visit to Farmington.

Mrs. Pettibone, who celebrated her 97th birthday a few weeks ago, remembers Mr. Wedow as a boy.

PROBLEMS MET IN EDUCATION TOLD AT CLUB MEETING

Superintendent of Schools Indicates Difficulties, Discusses New Trend

Difficulties under which educational leaders labor in their efforts to make improvements and advancements were outlined before the Farmington Exchange Club by Supt. of Schools John Dalrymple.

One of the chief handicaps, Supt. Dalrymple said, lies in the fact that many factors are definite. Science deals to a large extent with known quantities, which do not vary, as do many factors in the educational field. "We have many men who offer their views on various phases of educational work, but none yet is able to speak with positive authority on numerous important problems."

Supt. Dalrymple expressed much interest and faith in mental hygiene, the treating with the student of the right mental attitude. To achieve the desired goal in this regard, said Supt. Dalrymple, means, however, solving the problem of individualizing instruction to care for the immense differences found in the student body of every school.

Supt. Dalrymple said there was no question but that the chief interest in educational work is turning from subject matter to the student, and pointed to the conference called by President Hoover last fall as indicating the trend in educational fields.

The reforms have been finally adopted by the State Supreme Court and will become operative on January 1, 1931.

FARMINGTON GETS 'SAME-DAY' TRUCK DELIVERY SERVICE

Special Noonday Truck Added By Eastern Michigan; Morning Delivery Earlier

Additional trucking service between Detroit and Farmington that will give receivers of goods in this area "same-day" delivery service has been announced by the Eastern Michigan Railways system. The new service is expected to prove a great convenience to all receiving goods in this area.

A truck is now leaving the Eastern Michigan freight offices in Detroit at noon each day and coming straight out to Farmington, arriving about 2 o'clock. Thus it is possible to order goods in Detroit in the morning and have them in Farmington a few hours later, provided delivery is made to the Eastern Michigan platform by noon. The truck also goes to Northville and Plymouth, affording the same convenience to those communities. The plan is on trial, according to John Clark and will be continued if found profitable.

A change is made also in the schedule of the regular truck, which now leaves Detroit at 6:00 instead of 7:00 o'clock in the morning, arriving about 8:00 o'clock, one hour earlier than formerly. This provides delivery of shipments earlier in the business day, a distinct advantage to many receivers of goods.
