The concert given in Farmington last Saturday night by the Northville band did not get anywhere near the attention that it deserved. There was but a light crowd out and the members of the band felt a little disappointment it. The band is doing its best to maintain an organization and we understand meets with light encouragement even at home.

Last Sunday half a dozen lots and a house were sold in Redford. The sale of lots continues unabated and will likely do so as long as the weather permits people to visit the subdivisions and pick them out. There is no longer any doubt of the quick increase of prices that always follow and an early investment is the only way to get big profits. See C. E. Ramsey at either Redford or Farmington for plans and prices.
