Harbingers Of Spring

I went out to my garden
The day before 'twas Spring,
That is if our own calendar
Just knew that very thing.

March breeze blew crost my shoulders,
The shadows held the snow;
And tho the sun shone brightly
The patches loathed to go.

But Spring had caused a fever,
My garden cured the ill;
That's why I journeyed in it,
Curiously to fill.

I poked my fingers 'mongst the leaves,
To find what I could see;
And would you know, some sassy crows
Laughed overhead at me!

"Ha! Ha!" they cried, "Ha! Ha!"
Those harbingers of Spring;
I searched the sky as they flew south
On feetest, blackest wing.

Ha! Ha! I said, "You laugh at me
You silly old black crow."
I walked right out my garden path
Expecting still more snow.

—Imogene Bicking.

Seven members were received into the church last Sunday, five by confirmation and two by confession of faith.

Methodist Church

Rev. F. C. Johnson, Pastor

Easter Sunday is always a great church-going day. We expect an overflowing crowd. Rev. Floyd Johnson will preach the Easter morning message from the theme, "The Son of God." The service will begin promptly at 10:30. We expect a large class to join church. An opportunity will be offered for those who wish to join the church either by profession of faith or church letter. Christian baptism will be administered to adults, children and infants. A large class of children will be taken in as preparatory members who will enter a class of instruction and join as full members on Children's Day in June.

In the evening at 7:30 the choir will give a cantata of Easter music. People come for miles to hear this choir which holds first place in Michigan choirs of its size.

A cordial welcome and an inspiring, soul-satisfying service is promised to all who attend at both services. We urge you to come early for good seats.

The young people will hold their meeting at 8:30 o'clock. It will be another one of those extremely interesting parley meetings. It is worth-while young people and you will feel at home.

Many who admit having been foolish once upon a time would resent the suggestion that they are still that way.

It seems that the up-keep of a pretty face is about as expensive as that of a homely one.
