How To Save

The way to save is to spend right at the right time. Having new soles put on your shoes before the old ones are worn through saves the shoes, makes repairing more satisfactory—and saves you the danger of illness.

Bring your shoes in today.

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

Anne Campbell, well-known and beloved Michigan poetess, has caught the romance so often associated with the telephone and has expressed it charmingly in the following lines, reprinted by special permission of the author and of The Detroit News, which published the poem November 13, 1930. (Copyright, 1930):

Long Distance Telephone

Over the lonesome miles, your voice meets mine in space,
And in a few short sentences you say
Enough to pull the sun out from his hiding place
And turn my nighttime into glorious day.
In days gone by beneath the window of his love,
The troubadour sang goldenly and long,
His chosen lady listened from her room above,
And drifted off in slumber to his song.
Now in a few crisp phrases rung across the wire
You tell me all that warbler could impart.
The telephone has grown to be the modern lyre
From which the lover sends his singing heart.
