Popular Little Tea Shop

By CLARISSA MACKIE

"BUT why a tea shop?" inquired "their friend, Mrs. Gray."

"That is such a foolish question," retorted Lois Raymond, "but I will try to explain; we are opening a tea shop, and I, in the hope of making money."

"All-the-look to 'the world, my dears," cried Mrs. Gray, "folding them both in her long arms, 'but everything has turned out so differently since I went abroad—I expected to find you both engaged! Polly to that Burnet boy—and you, Lois, why you were engaged to Gardner Allen. Where is he?"

They both flushed.

"I shall be giving a luncheon next week," decided Mrs. Gray, "to about twelve people—you must let me have a chance that day, and I will be there."

When they were alone, Polly looked at her year-old sister, "Dolly, Gray is a dear," she said sincerely; "that luncheon will be the making of us Lois."

Lois lost the little broken, far-away look she was wearing and she essayed a cheerful smile. "It may be the making of this shop! In the meantime we must pick up business the best way we can. Our food is delicious. We even if grandfather did say—"

"Never mind what grandfather says about the tea-room business, Polly. I never mind anything about the way he treated us—what he said to Gardner Allen or Bob Burnet. We cannot even guess that he could say anything very unpleasant after we have spent our lives with him since we were orphaned but he might have given the impression that he questioned their ability to keep us in style—oh, dear, and then we had quarrelled with him, and he sent us out with a hundred dollars between us—we will have to forget poor grandfather, Polly."

After that luncheon the success of the tiny tea shop was assured.

Then one afternoon when Bobby Burnet came in with another girl! Polly turned so pale that Lois whispered that she would take her place. Of course Polly would not stand that so she dabbed some color on her cheeks, powdered her charming nose and tray in hand approached the newcomers.

The girl was studying the luncheon card. Bobby looked rather bored, suddenly saw Polly standing beside their table and started violently.

He stared white the girl ordered, and when she had finished and waited for him he made a strong effort to concentrate.

"A sandwich—anything will do—and a cupful of tea," was his order.

Polly's dimple suddenly came into her cheek, and she went behind the counter and worked furiously over a very delectable chicken salad sandwich for Bobby. Somehow the little look of joy in Polly's eyes remained there for days.

One sunny autumn day when both of the girls secretly longed for a good horseback ride in the country, business in the little shop was very dull.

"I suppose it is too beautiful out of doors for people to spend a spare moment in here!" murmured Lois.

"Somebody coming now," remarked Polly, as three men entered the low door. When the first one lifted his bowed head, the girl almost cried aloud.

It was her grandfather, and accompanying him were Gardner Allen and Bobby Burnet! The latter came forward, smiling, pleasantly at Polly.

"Can you arrange a table for five?—we are expecting two ladies to join us—just a regular luncheon—anything you please will do." He rejoined his companions and they stood in front of the window looking into the sunny street where their car was at the curb, while the two girls rapidly arranged a round table for five. When everything was ready, Lois went forward.

"The table is ready, sir," she said.

"Very good, Lois, my dear," he said and bent and kissed her tenderly. This was too much for young Polly, who came for her umbrella and then when the three were standing at their chairs, grandfather said, "We are waiting for you girls to join us, one on either side of me, if you please!"

At the top of the meal it was the grandfather who rose in his chair with his water glass in his hand.

"I propose the health of the Tea Shop," he said.

The drunk solemnly, and grandfather lifted his glass one more and looked at the two girls and the two young men with smiling eyes. "Almost a year ago," he said, "two young men came and asked me for the hands and hearts of my two daughters. I asked them to go away for a year, and then return—and they have kept their word. Before my granddaughters married I wanted to be sure that they could be self-supporting in case of adversity, so I quarrelled with them and we parted. It has nearly broken my heart, but they have proved to be pure gold—they have succeeded and it all comes of you are of the same mind, we will consider the matter settled, and close the tea shop now, and then we will all go out to the country club for the afternoon!"

That is the real secret of why the popular little tea shop changed hands, and how Lois and Polly married the men of their hearts and they all came to live with grandfather in the big house.

CONTAMINATION IN STATE LAKES

LITTLE-REPORT

Rumors Of Water Pollution Discounted By Department Of Health

Rumors prevalent through the state that certain bathing beaches have been closed to the public because of water pollution, have been discounted by the Department of Health.

With the bathing beaches in all of Michigan's state parks inspected, only two have been found to be in such a condition as to be in any way detrimental to health and these two have been posted and closed. The two bathing beaches closed are at the East Tawas State Park on Tawas Bay and Blumer State Park No. 2 at Rochester, on the Clinton River.

The waters of these two parks beaches, inspected by the Health Department were found to contain pollution injurious to public health.

The beaches at the two parks will remain closed until conditions have been improved.

In a letter sent by Director Edward D. Rich of the Bureau of Engineering of the Health Department to the Parks Division of the Conservation Department it was stated that with the two exceptions the waters of all parks have been found in good condition.

"There have been in past years, rumors concerning certain bathing places about the state each summer," Director Rich said in his letter. "This year the state is making a determined effort to either prove that these rumors are false or have justification and I believe that the early statement in this letter that only two state park beaches have been closed is evidence that most of them are safe and what is heard about them are strictly rumors with no foundation."

Bathers can rest assured that when the state finds that conditions are detrimental to a bathers' health, the beaches will be immediately closed, Director Rich stated.

Barber War Continues

But End Appears Near

The war is still on but how long it will last is problematical. Twenty-five cent hair cuts have won for the moment, anyway. And twenty-five cent shaves are now appearing in all local tonorial parlors.

Price cutting and the ensuing barber war started last week but it was only until this week that all barber shops lowered their prices to the same scale and standardized the fee for shaves.

How long this price scale will be in effect is unknown but for the time being, at least, all shops are, to all appearances, in agreement. Undoubtedly the end is in sight.

Consider Your Baby's Shoes

Remarkable, isn't it, how much happiness there is just looking at Junior's little boot. Really, your heart is in your eyes as you study its size and wrinkled contour. Isn't it odd the way a baby's shoe has a tendency to curl.

While you're looking at the tinniness of it, the chances are your mind unconsciously visions the day when this shoe will be hidden in the toe of the young man whose foot it once fit so easily.

What will baby wear when he grows up? Your first thought is for his safety, his security. But he will need a start. Why not begin this very day to put a little away in our vault week by week, or month by month. We will keep it safe for him and for you until the day when he will need it to give him a real advantage.

Ford Cars Win All Events At Davison

Competing on a half-mile dirt track soggy with recent rains, Ford cars won all five amateur automobile stock car races at the Genesee County Fair at Davison, Michigan. In three of the contests, Ford drivers took all the prizes, while ten of the twelve first, second and third place prizes in the five races were won by Ford drivers. The races were witnessed by 4,200 persons from Flint and vicinity.

The feature race, for 50 miles, was won by Eddie Ostwick, of 2321 Wisconsin avenue, Detroit, driving a Ford roadster. Ostwick also won the 10-mile and the 15-mile races and placed second in the 20-mile race. The 5-mile race was won by Earl Dibble, and the 20-mile race by Forrest Hart, both in Fords.

One of the Fords competing in the 50-mile race threw a tire. None of the other Fords experienced trouble in any of the races.

Three other cars skidded through the track fence during the 50-mile race, while four others were forced to withdraw, two because their motors became overheated. A third car was forced to withdraw because it lost all its oil.
