PAY DAY

By AMY CAMPBELL (As by McClure Newspaper Syndicate) AS Dick neared being with his pay envelope in his pocket, Dick Howard had a sense of depression that he hated to go inside and face the exhilarated mood of his wife. She was always glad to see him, and for some new adventure in spending.

To have been married a year and a half with a baby one month old, and to have been able to save more than a paltry sum for the future, was good wages, seemed overwhelming tragedy. Most of what they saved had gone to pay the hospital bill. The doctor was not to be blamed for that. Dick couldn't see how he was so stupid as to turn over nearly every cent to Mae from the beginning.

That was the worst of this never getting anywhere. There was nothing to do but to consider what he ought to have felt. Especially in situation. Dick felt ugly with himself for being so soft in according to Mae's demands for money. He had never once protested and now she could be so weak as to fall for that dollar-down stuff. But he hadn't the heart so far to censure her enthusiasm.

"Not that he didn't want to spend. He took himself a little kick at it as the next one of throwing money for a little fun or spree. But Mae was surely hyped on this installment buying. He wondered where it would bring them if she didn't stop. He suddenly he thought of her extravagance. He saw them in debt which they could never meet. If he had any sense in him at all he'd tell her. He'd tell her tonight when he handed over the pay. He'd be kind about it but wise and firm. He'd treat her like a little kid that just needed advice.

"Oh, Dick, I've hardly been able to wait to tell you what we've got. Baby I. You know we've got a new car. He'd be going to begin right here at what first with his own lovely library. Look—she led the way to the living room and displayed the beginning of a group of knowledge volumes for a child from babyhood to—it looked to Dick, like old age. She leaped upon pages with her finger pointed excitedly. He certain items which attracted her eye.

A slow fure came over Dick. He looked at the baby asleep in the new buggy, and at Mae with her eyes gleaming over this new purchase that was to chain them with new obligations. He tightened his fists to keep them from gripping her shoulders. He felt he could shake and shake her into sensibility, but it more been obliging that he had ever known in either kissing or loving her. But when she went over to the baby, coughing above him, calling back that she had put the money for the down payment so she thought it was a splendid thing to get the books, he took a quick step toward them.

"And so you had to get into more debt before you could get more for her as she bent to pick up his son. "And now," she continued, without looking at Dick, without seemingly to care for his new purchase that was to chain them with new obligations. He tightened his fists to keep them from gripping her shoulders. He felt he could shake and shake her into sensibility, but it more been obliging that he had ever known in either kissing or loving her. But when she went over to the baby, coughing above him, calling back that she had put the money for the down payment so she thought it was a splendid thing to get the books, he took a quick step toward them.

Meeting Endorses Plan For Continuing Bank

(Continued from page one) This morning's meeting of the stockholders of the bank, in addition to the stockholders of the bank, agreed to a cancellation of this portion of their assets as claims against the bank. In addition, the stockholders of the bank agreed to a 50 per cent assessment on their stock, which will amount to $25,000, this to be put into the trust fund.

The remaining 70 per cent of deposits and assets remain in the hands of the Federal Reserve Bank, under the control of the bank's officers and the Depositors' Committee for three years, unless they decide to shorten this period as would be quite possible with improved business conditions. During the period, with a percentage decided upon by the officials and the Committee, all deposits will be entitled to a uniform percentage in withdrawal.

The stockholders are still held liable to the full amount of their statutory liability, in addition to the assessment of 50 per cent made for the trust fund. All profit from operation of the bank during the period the trusteeship is in operation is to go to the trust fund, and no dividends are to be paid to the stockholders. Judge Lacy, who has for several months counseled and aided numerous small communities throughout Michigan in similar circumstances within the past few months, outlined in clear, simple fashion the way in which banks have brought difficulty, and how co-operation can prevent disastrous losses. He read the agreement through, pausing at the end of each paragraph and reducing to simple terms the legal language which it was necessary to use to comply with requirements of the law. He invited questions of any sort and many as the audience would care to ask. "This is your meeting," he said, "it is your bank, and this is your community."

So thorough and clear was the exposition of the plan by Judge Lacy and Senator Gittins that only about half a dozen questions were asked, the first being how soon the agreement could be completed and normal operations resumed. Judge Lacy reported that in Plymouth, signatures for 88 per cent had been obtained in one week, while similar success was indicated in Union City.

Placing the agreement into operation here will give Farmington the distinction of being the first town in Michigan in which the plan has been utilized in connection with a State Bank. Senator Gittins told the assembly the magnitude of the disaster which befalls a town when it is left without a bank was emphasized by Judge Lacy, when he declared that in Royal Oak business-men found their trade cut in half when their banks all closed, and it has not since recovered. He declared it "sensational" to him that Farmington still had a bank while so many other institutions had been closed, congratulating James L. Hogle, president of the bank, John Fitzpatrick, cashier, the directors and the community in general upon this occasion.

Senator Gittins is a Detroit attorney, having been a member of the State's $10,000,000 trust fund for the welfare of the children of Michigan, a director of the Union Guardian banking group of Detroit, and a member of the prominent law firm of Anderson, Wilcox, Lacy and Lawson. Senator Gittins is a former mayor of Highland Park, and an attorney in Detroit. President of P. T. A. Resignation of Mrs. Margaret Hill as president of Farmington Parent-Teacher Association was tendered and accepted at a meeting of the Association Tuesday night. Mrs. Hill has left for Ohio where she is caring for a relative. Mrs. Hill had been head of the P. T. A. in Farmington for nearly two years, assuming that office soon after coming here from Pontiac where she held a similar office. Members of the Association expressed regret in Mrs. Hill's departure and in her withdrawal from active participation in the P. T. A. Famous "Zoo" The largest "zoo" is the London Zoological park, London, England; Bronx park, in New York city; second, the National Zoological park at Washington, D. C., and the St. Louis Zoological park at St. Louis, Mo., are third and fourth in size.

STATE TO EXPERIMENT WITH THE LAKE SHINER Lansing, Feb. 3.—Experiments will be carried on within the coming year by several of the state's fish hatcheries to determine whether the lake shiner will propagate and thrive in the inland waters of Michigan.

The Fish Division of the Department of Conservation believes that if this miniature species will live and breed in the inland lakes, it will form a valuable food for game fish.
