Friendly Witch Advises: 'Cast Your Own Spells'

By LORRAINE McCLISH

A charming young pre-med student from Wayne State University will be initiated into a witches' coven on All Hallow's Eve and take the name Lydamie. She is the daughter of Gundella, one of Michigan's most famous witches, and she talked to the Women of North Farmington Club this week to straighten out some misconceptions on witchery.

The essence: "You can-do-it; I can-do-it; everybody-can-do-it; cast your own spell, use your ESP, influence others with a thought, and map out your own destination. 'This is not supernatural, it is supremely natural, a very natural phenomena," said Lydamie.

WITCHES HAVE three basic tenets, she said.

They believe in a universal power, (God, if you will) a force of energy we are all a part of, and will all return to in a some-day uniting.

They believe in reincarnation, a series of life-levels we have chosen ourselves in order to gain perfection for the final uniting with the universal force.

And they believe that everybody is endowed with the same energy-power to enforce change that will work out their karma.

"Nothing is pre-destined except that you have chosen this life to enable you to learn something here," she said.

AS TO WHITE magic and black magic, she used the illustration of a knife. In the hands of a doctor, it's an instrument for good; in the hands of a criminal, it could be an instrument for evil.

"So witchcraft isn't good or evil, it's how and who uses it," she said. "But don't forget the boomerang, the inevitable natural law that will bring the same thing back to you."

Lydamie says that when two persons are working spells on the same matter to different ends, it's going to be the party best equipped for the job who is going to win out, the same as in any physical or mental contest.

Gundella Out-Spelled

Wonderland Merchants cancelled Friday night's scheduled appearance of Gundella the witch.

Several merchants were reportedly reacting to unfavorable telephone calls from the public. "The people were very nice about it," said a spokesman, "but they just didn't think it was a very nice thing to have."

Besides entertaining at private home parties, Gundella, a 41-year-old school teacher and mother of four has made a career of speaking on university campuses, cult scout events and even a Catholic girls college, all without incident.

The shopping center's announcement of Oct. 12 that she would appear indicated some departure from her previous methods. It said she would "demonstrate how to make a voodoo doll" and suggested her show would be "for a mature adult audience."

MRS. PAUL LA VOIE
(Suzanne Walrod)

LaVoies Married In St. Maurice

St. Maurice Catholic Church in Livonia was the setting for the Sept. 3 evening wedding of Suzanne Walrod and Paul LaVoie.

The Rev. Thomas Cain officiated.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Howard Walrod of Lyndon Avenue, Livonia, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward LaVoie of Fendt Street, Farmington.

THE BRIDE, given in marriage by her father, wore a princess gown of ivory organza and white peau d'ange lace. Her camelot headpiece held a fingertip veil, and she carried stephanotis, baby's breath and lily.

Attending the bride were Cherry Barns of Belleville as maid of honor and Barbara Pehrson and Layla Khoury of Livonia as bridesmaids.

Their gowns had brown chiffon and taffeta skirts, brown and green flowered bodices and ivory chiffon sleeves.

FLOWER GIRL Patty Ann Walrod wore a dress of ivory nylon/eyelet over green taffeta trimmed with brown and green ribbons. All the attendants carried white mums with dried green flowers and baby's breath.

The bridegroom's attendants wore brown Edwardian tuxedos. Don Stewart of Farmington was best man and the guests were seated by Tom Walrod of Livonia and Craig Gross of Plymouth. Chris Callaghan of Toledo was ring bearer.

A dinner reception followed the ceremony.

Party Planned

The Childbirth Without Pain Education Association will sponsor an Ice Follies party for the Nov. 18 evening performance of the ice show at Olympia.

Tickets at $4 may be ordered up to Nov. 6 from Mrs. Elly Shiller, 20387 Roseland, Southfield.
