The "Mouth Test"
Tells The Real
Antiseptic Story

It is easy to show unusual deodorizing or germ killing power under unusual conditions! Some antiseptics repeat in use. Others do not. We wanted to be sure about M31... So we tested it in the mouth.

In normal gargling time it kills the germs that cause sore-throat.

M31 Dental Paste is a suitable companion for M31 Solution.

NEW FORD
V-8

Only by riding in it, driving it, can you appreciate its wonderful power-plant, its luxurious comfort, its completeness in everything that makes for motor-car enjoyment, for reliability and economy.

Let us show you how it floats along the highway, without effort or vibration, how it sails over the steepest hills, how it dashes away at the touch of accelerator and up to the highest safe driving speed, then idles down to a walk with the same steady flow of power, the same velvety smoothness.

We're proud of this great new automobile. We know you'll admire it as much as we, once you've taken the wheel.

Come in or phone 151—a car awaits your request for a demonstration.

Veteran Spanish Actor
In "The Broken Wing"

Pietro Sasso, veteran stage and screen actor, who has portrayed innumerable Spanish character parts on stage and screen, plays an important part in Paramount's picture, "The Broken Wing," which is the feature at the State theatre, Pontiac for four days the forepart of next week.

Sasso is one or a half-dozen actors of Spanish lineage who was assigned to this picture, so that in its character parts it would reflect the full Latin-American flavor of the story.

Effect Of Ruling On
Bank Deposits Told

ments of the bank, is the receiver justified in paying any liquidation dividends to other than savings depositors? This is answered thus: "Yes, provided the receiver retains sufficient assets to insure the payment of a percentage of savings depositors' claims equal to that paid on claims of commercial depositors."

The third question is: "Is the receiver justified in paying any dividends to other than savings depositors until it has finally been determined what assets are available?" Answer: "Yes, providing the receiver retains sufficient assets to insure payment on savings depositors' claims ratable with those paid other depositors."

The fourth question is: "If there be insufficient proceeds from the liquidation of investments of the savings department to pay the savings depositors in full, are the savings depositors entitled to share in the balance of the assets of the bank with other claimants, and if so in what ratio?" Answer: "Yes, provided the assets other than those in which savings depositors have a statutory preference are sufficient to insure payments to commercial depositors ratable with those paid to savings depositors. Distribution should be ratable on the basis of proven claims."

These answers are important in the case of Farmington State Savings Bank and most others, because it is generally held that liquidation of the assets of commercial departments may be much faster than of the savings departments. If commercial depositors, therefore, had to wait for a dividend of any kind until after all the assets of the savings department were liquidated, large amounts of money might be collected which the receiver could not distribute to commercial depositors. By the decision, the receiver may distribute dividends to the commercial depositors from that department, provided he holds sufficient to assure that the savings depositors will receive a ratable share of dividend with the commercial depositors.

The savings depositors have an advantage in that, if they do not receive 100 per cent, they may share in the commercial department's liquidated assets if enough is realized. The payments to them in such a case, however are not to exceed the ratio of payments to commercial depositors.
