NEW METHOD OF OILING STREETS TO BE UTILIZED

Farmington streets are being oiled by a new system, which is said to be not only better than the method previously used but also more economical.

The oil is put on by a special apparatus which distributes the oil under pressure, forcing it into the gravel. It is stated that this causes an application to last much longer than the method of simply sprinkling it on.

Machinery is furnished by the oil company, brought to Farmington from Detroit for the work, the cost being only nine dollars. One application may be sufficient to serve for the entire summer.

Classical Theater

The ancient theater of Dionysus, Athens, could seat 30,000 spectators. The present row consisted of marble chairs for the dignitaries and were appropriately inscribed. The seats yet remain at the bottom.

SOFT BALL TEAMS FINISH SCHEDULE; ARGUE "WHO WON"

Casualty Occurs in Final Contest; Captains of Two Teams Claim Title

Farmington Soft Ball League's first schedule has come to a conclusion, still with its three teams, but with also one casualty and an argument over "who's champion."

Team No. 2 had the title won before the final game last Friday night, and although it lost, it still leads with three games won, one lost, and two tied. Team No. 3 is close behind with four won and two lost. Captain George Gildemeister of No. 3 claims that tie games count as a "game played" in the standings, and thus, figuring by percentages, he wins.

Which may, or may not, please Capt. Harrison Johnson, of No. 2. He hasn't said—for publication.

The casualty was the twisting of Howard Warner's ankle, as he was sliding into second base. The ankle will be in a cast for ten days more, at least. He had been pitching for Team No. 3.

The other team in the league, No. 1 seems to have been cursed by its number, and finishes number three in the standings, with no games won, four lost, and two tied. Three of its players have also quit the team, but Captain "Curly" Williams is reported ready to be "up and at 'em" for the next schedule.

The fellows selected for the outfield are often regarded as the least important on the team. But it's the outfielders who have starred through this schedule, saving games and giving spectators their grip thrills. Two plays by the "gardeners" will be long-remembered.

One was the feature of the first victory of Team No. 2, when it defeated Team No. 3 by a score of five to two. There might have been a different story to tell, had it not been for a spectacular catch by Roy Plumton in the outfield.

Team No. 3 had Harold Grace on second base and Maas on first with none out in the fifth inning, when George Gildemeister hit a terrific line drive to left center. Plumton started forward and to his right when the ball was hit. No one believed he could reach it, but he managed to grab the waist-high liner while going at top speed, and hung on to it. The force of the drive almost knocked him off his feet, but he recovered his balance in time to make a good throw to Heeny at second base and doubled Grace off the bag.

Had the drive got past the fielder, it would probably have been a home run. Instead of having two out and a man on first base, three runs would have been tallied and the score tied, with no one out.

A catch perhaps even more sensational was that made by Manley Newman in the tight battle later on between the same two teams. Malcolm Van Every was a bat for Team No. 2 with a man on first. He hit a smashing line drive to the outfield that Newman tore after with all his speed. So hard was the drive that the base runner who had been on first was past third and Van Every was at second when Newman reached the ball. He got his hands on it, but could not hold it, and it fell, but before it reached the ground he grabbed again and caught it just before it hit the turf. Then he hurried it to first for a double play.

Increasing expertness in play is shown by the scores. In the first contest, 50 runs were tallied a 25-25 tie. Since then scores have been less than half that amount, averaging not much more than 5 runs per side. One game ended 5 to 2, another 7 to 2, and two 8 to 3.

Human Hair

It is estimated that the number of hairs on the average human head is about 110,000, there being about 1,000 to each square inch of scalp. Women have a greater number of hairs on their heads than men, and the heads of blonds contain a greater number of hairs because blond hair is usually finer in texture. Red-haired heads contain the fewest hairs.
