Neubausers' Master Breeding Farm of America

ONE of the biggest real estate deals ever made in this territory was announced recently when Neubausers' Master Breeding Farm of America, located on 23 branches covering well over the north-western part of Ohio, into Indiana, Michigan and still on to Canada. They are making unceasing efforts to improve the quality of their chicks and this last farm purchase is one of the biggest steps toward chick perfection they have ever taken.

It is planned to stock the poultry houses with 16,000 laying hens of the very best bloodlines in America. This will further support stock from the internationally-celebrated Tom Barron Farms of England. In this magnificent flock there will be 20 different varieties, but about half of the birds will be big type English Leghorns and when the farm is fully stocked it can easily be seen that this will be the largest poultry breeding establishment in America.

Cockrels from this farm will be distributed to all of their branch hatcheries so that by this mating even better quality than ever before will be found in the sturdy chicks which are now being sent all over the United States and Canada by the Neubausers.

Just as soon as possible another Neubausers branch hatchery will be located at their farm where chicks will be hatched from trap-nested pedigreed stock.

The Neubausers are also interested in their silver fox industry and they plan to move all of their valuable fur-bearing animals to this farm where the very best feed in equipment and housing facilities awaits them.
