

Governor Brucker Plays Role Of An "Iron Man"

Works While He Travels; His Car Is State Capitol On Wheels

Lansing, Mich., Set. 28.—Probably every governor in the United States is confronted with the problem of how to attend to the serious business of the State, and yet keep in direct contact with the people he is trying to serve.

In Michigan the problem has been met by different governors in different ways. Gov. Alex. J. Grobeck, finding himself unable to concentrate on matters requiring intensive study during ordinary office hours because of the constant pressure of casual visitors, worked late at night in the executive office. Gov. Fred W. Green frequently made use of a suite of rooms in a nearby hotel for conferences.

Still another way of meeting the situation has been adopted by Gov. Wilbur M. Brucker. Confronted in an unusual degree with requests to speak on State affairs at public gatherings, he has actually made these out-of-town trips a means of concentrating on the important business of his office.

A typical day for Gov. Brucker goes about like this: He appears at his office in the morning and attends to his correspondence, which is always heavy. He makes it a point to read every letter himself, and while his secretaries assume much of the task of preparing replies to those of a routine nature, he keeps a close watch on what goes out over his name.

With the correspondence out of the way, he gives his time to conferences, and to meeting the citizens of the state whose business requires his attention.

Most men would consider such a forenoon and afternoon of strenuous activity in their office sufficient for their daily stint. But for Gov. Brucker it is only the half-way mark. Late in the afternoon he sends for his car, and away he whisks for Detroit, Benton Harbor, or Clare, or some other distant point, where he is scheduled for a speech.

Does he relax and enjoy himself en route? Not often. Usually he takes with him some department head with whom he desires to confer on affairs of state. In the seclusion of his car, they are free from all interruptions and distractions and can concentrate on the matter in hand.

Sometimes, however, the Governor takes advantage of the opportunity to sleep in his car. He has the happy faculty of being able to do so anywhere at any time. He has learned while en route to France, often, he is able, when especially fatigued, to indulge in a half hour's nap and to awaken completely refreshed.

Gifted with a strong physique and great reserves of nervous energy, Gov. Brucker is far from being worn down by the "iron man" role he has played. Instead, he appears to be always "on top" of his job, and he rarely fails to have a buoyant smile and a cheery word for those with whom he deals, no matter how burdensome or puzzling the problems with which he finds it necessary to grapple.

BUSINESS WOMEN PLAN FARMINGTON HALLOWE'EN FETE

Seek To Avoid Destruction Of Property; Boy Scouts To Assist

There won't be any idle hands in Farmington this Halloween for the devil to influence, if the outdoor party sponsored by the Business and Professional Women and the Boy Scouts is as successful as the outline of it promised when laid before the Farmington Exchange Club at its Wednesday noon meeting.

A parade, bonfire, and refreshments are slated for the entertainment, according to Mrs. Lillian Harger, chairman of the committee. All organizations in Farmington are being asked to assist.

The Exchange club contributed five dollars.

Ample Notice When Moving Is Requested

Subscribers of the Enterprise are asked to take special care to give ample notice of change of address. The new postal laws enacted by the last session of Congress impose a charge upon newspapers for notices which are sent by the post-office, advising that subscribers have moved. Numbers of such notices accumulating amount to a sizeable expense.

Care taken to give as much notice as possible, at least a week or two before moving, will be appreciated, and will give the subscriber more assurance of receiving all copies of the paper.

EDGEWOOD LODGE CELEBRATES 7th YEAR WITH PARTY

Willis T. Roberts Is Master Of Ceremonies At Rehearsal Entertainment

On Tuesday evening about 150 persons attended the entertainment given by the Edgewood Rebekah Lodge in celebration of their seventh birthday anniversary. Willis T. Roberts, past noble grand of I. O. O. F. No. 427, presided as master of ceremonies.

After a short talk by Mr. Roberts, pictures were thrown on a screen of some of the earlier activities and people of the Lodge which brought back pleasant memories. Mrs. Gladys Boucher of Farmington and some of her pupils gave a number of dance numbers and solos which received much applause.

A cornet solo by Mary Allen of Detroit and a violin selection by the Messrs. Dumas and Lafore were next on the program. A solo and impersonations by Rev. Robert Richards and songs by the members of the I. O. O. F. Lodge were greatly enjoyed. After all joined in songs led by Mr. Richards, all sat down to refreshments served by the ladies.

Hold Treasure Hunt At High Hollow Club

A horseback treasure hunt, under Captain J. W. Wellwood, was held at 10 o'clock Sunday morning from High Hollow Hunt Club at Eight Mile and Newburgh roads. Twenty-eight riders participated in this unusual hunt.

Directed by the many strange and weird clues scattered about the countryside, the riders were soon dispersed in all directions in the search for the "bag-o'-gold."

Harrison Johnson of Farmington made the find after covering about eight miles. The treasure was concealed in an inconspicuous pile of stones in an open field. Mr. Johnson was riding Rex, the favorite mount of H. C. Clark of Northville.

Riders and horses were entertained from Farmington, Northville, Plymouth, Palmer Woods, Grosse Ile, and Detroit.

After the ride all gathered about an open grill in the maple woods at High Hollow to enjoy hot juicy broiled steaks with rolls and coffee.

Missionary Society Meets Here Tuesday

A group meeting of a section of the Ann Arbor district of the Women's Home Missionary Society, which includes Farmington, Ypsilanti, Plymouth, Northville, Wayne, and Farmington, will be held in the Farmington M. E. church next Tuesday.

It will be an all-day session, open to all women of the church and community, whether affiliated with the Missionary Society or not, who would like to view the progress of this humanitarian work.

The Progressive Bible class will serve a 25 cent luncheon at noon. Members of the Auxiliary have been reminded that this will include their regular monthly meeting.

ONE CHANGE MADE AMONG METHODIST PASTORS IN REGION

Rev. F. C. Johnson Returned To Farmington; Rev. Ede Is Transferred

All Methodist ministers in this area with one exception were returned at the recent Mt. Clemens conference.

Rev. Floyd Charles Johnson of Farmington was returned for his third consecutive year, and Rev. W. R. Richards will remain at Clarencville.

Former Farmington pastors who were returned to their charges of last year are Dr. H. Addis Leeson at Flint, Rev. Edward F. Dunlavy to Bethany Church in Detroit, and Rev. Sidney D. Eva to Mt. Clemens.

Rev. Bert Ede, who for the past three years, has been the pastor of the Walled Lake, Commerce, and Four Towns churches, was transferred to the Saline charge at the recent conference at Mt. Clemens. Rev. Ernest L. Carles of Kingston will be the pastor at Walled Lake.

Rev. Frank Blake will return to Dundee and Rev. Joseph Chapman was transferred to Bancroft. Rev. Blake and Rev. Chapman were former pastors of the Walled Lake charge.

CANDIDATE NOMINATED 2 WEEKS AFTER PRIMARY

August Miller of Southfield is receiving congratulations on his nomination for state representative in the first district, two weeks after the primary election. Mr. Miller was unofficially reported as defeated by Clayton Crissman of Rochester, and in his own words to the Enterprise "had given up hope," but Wednesday the official canvass showed he won by 18 votes, 3,085 to 3,067 for Crissman. He will start campaigning soon.
