FARMERS MAY GET HELP ON FEDERAL LOAN REQUESTS

As part of the National Plan for Rehabilitation, the Federal Government is anxious to assist those farmers and their creditors who have suffered from the general collapse of farm prices.

Farmers who are experiencing difficulty with mortgages on their farms may be able to get them refinanced through loan from the Federal Land Bank of the Land Commissioner, or by arbitration with their creditors in combination with such loans.

Loans from the Pontiac Production Credit Corporation can also be obtained to finance purchases of seeds and tools and other necessary farm equipment.

All farmers in Oakland County interested in refinancing their mortgages or obtaining such loans should immediately get in touch with Mr. K. D. Bailey, County Agricultural Agent at the Post Office Building in Pontiac, or with one of the following:

For White Lake, Milford and Commerce Townships: Edward A. Ormond, Milford, R. F. D. No. 2, White Lake Township.

For Lyon, Novi, Farmington, West Bloomfield Townships: Harold L. Ward, Orchard Lake, West Bloomfield Township.

For Southfield Township: Clarence R. Horkey, 12-Mile and John R. Roads, Royal Oak Township.

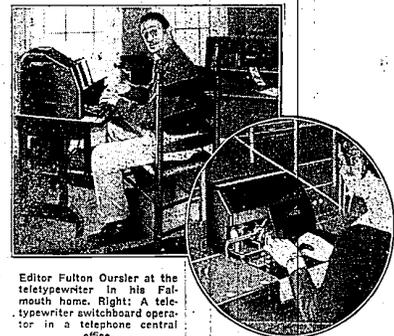

Harold L. Ward is chairman, Oakland County Farm-Debt Adjustment Committee.

He is Editor of Eight Magazines,
Yet He Seldom Goes Near His Office

Editor Fulton Oursler at the typewriter in his farmhouse home. Right: A typewriter switching operator in a telephone central office.

Prediction has often been made in recent years that the time will come when business will be decentralized and the skyscraper will be no more when the executive will live in the country and his workers will be scattered where needed; and when organization and adequate communication will permit of such remote control.

Fulton Oursler, the author, traveler, music critic, playwright, editor of the magazine Liberty and editor-in-chief of seven other magazines, is daily giving a working demonstration of the practicability of regularly carrying on his business and directing the activities of his subordinates from a distance of several hundred miles. And it is a convincing demonstration.

Directs Magazine by Wire

Mr. Oursler realizes that he is a bit ahead of his times, but his experience this year has proved, to him at least, that he is not so far ahead as many people might believe. What has made his experiment a success is the teletypewriter exchange service of the Bell System. For, by its means, he is able to live in Falmouth, Mass., on the shores of Cape Cod overlooking Buzzards Bay, and direct his publications in New York. He does this entirely by teletypewriter.

Twice a day regularly, and sometimes oftener, he sits at his machine and "talks" with his New York office, handling the many details of his job with all the facility of personal contact. Although he is 150 miles from his office, by the use of the teletypewriter it is as near to him as the corner of the sun porch which his secretaries use for an office.

Calls It Complete Success

Mr. Oursler declares, with emphasis, that this is the only life for a job like his. But he adds that it couldn't be done without the teletypewriter service which carries his messages back and forth, and also furnishes that important feature—a written record of the entire communication. Thus, the editor sees in
