The Tigers Never Lose

Amid the current excitement about the Detroit Tigers, there's an interesting phenomenon occurs every day on the newsboys' corners in downtown Detroit. Did you ever notice the difference in their cries when the Tigers win and when they lose? Maybe it's a carefully-considered, well-tested bit of sales psychology on their part. Perhaps it's just an unconscious reaction of paper-selling fans who are as enthusiastic as their customers. Whichever it is, it is noticeable that when Detroit wins, the boys are all shouting at the top of their voices: "Extra, extra, Tigers win ball game." But when the afternoon brings a reverse, the paper-vendor's cry is not the exact opposite, but this: "Extra, extra, all about the ball game!"

Whoever heard a newsboy shout: "Paper, paper, Tigers lose ball game?"

Possibly, in the newsboy's philosophy, the Tigers never lose, or at least they never should. And one is forced to admit that it probably wouldn't sell many additional papers to yell out that the Tigers lost, because most men are still boys, at least in that they would much rather read happy than sad tidings. "All about the ball game" is a less irritating way of reporting that the other team won.

Listen, next time you're downtown in the late afternoon. If Detroit has won you'll hear it dimmed in your ears on every corner. If you hear, "All about the ball game," you'll know one of the other seven teams has been the victor, and you won't need to buy a paper. Never, in the 30-year history of the Tigers, have the newsboys even told the world that the home team dropped a game.

A Big Order for Motorists

From a leading front-page article in The Pontiac Daily Press: "The statute under which Puckett is charged requires a motorist to stop his vehicle immediately at the scene of the accident, give all possible assistance to the injured or dead, and to report the accident to the nearest police station or sheriff's office within 48 hours."

Wonder what the Legislature had in mind when they passed that law requiring every motorist involved in accidents to stop and "give all possible assistance to the dead?"

Wart-healers

Our fast-changing world may bring us within a generation a kind of living as yet undreamed of. Science will provide new miracles in endless variety and number. Yet the generation that is passing, mistaking something from the world, too.

What, for instance, has science to offer that will match those rare people known as "wart-healers." Scientists will laugh and possibly they're right. But there are people of middle age living in Farmington today who will declare upon oath that when they were children, they had warts which disappeared after a visit to a man or woman of the previous generation, who are no longer among the living.

There lived in and near Farmington at least one man and one woman, highly respected citizens of the community, whose powers in reference to warts are ardently attested to by people who vis-ited them, and whose warts later disappeared. The elderly folks were not quacks and did not set themselves up as healers. But it was generally reported in the community that visits to them were followed by the disappearance of warts. One Farmington man tells that he had a large and ugly seed-wart on one hand, in his boyhood. He walked two miles to see the elderly man of whom he had heard. He showed the wart. The man rubbed it a moment, then looked at the boy and said: "When you forget about this it will be gone." Sometime later the lad noticed that the wart had gone from his hand, but to this day he cannot tell when it left. Similar experiences are recounted by men who visited an elderly lady of this community who died only a few years ago. She put a kind of silk cloth over the wart and she also spoke of its disappearing "as soon as you forget about it". Her success also was axiomatic in the neighborhood, and living residents of Farmington will testify to it.

One may smile, and science would undoubtedly laugh sarcastically, might possibly offer a glib explanation. But then, so far as we know, no one has yet discovered what causes warts, these seemingly unimportant little things that are yet so annoying if you have a bad-looking one in a conspicuous place. Nor has anyone discovered a perfect, scientific method of removing them. They are burned out, now, or cut out — and leave a scar. The "wart-healers" never left one.

Among those who tell of their own experiences in losing warts, are intelligent people who would not for a moment fall victim to the most diabolically clever fakirs in "healing," and pseudo-science. But they will steadfastly maintain and offer testimony to what they know, from personal knowledge, was accomplished by the old-time "wart-healers," of a generation ago.

The Home Garden

(Donia County News)

Many wise householders are already looking forward to a home garden this coming summer. That is a sensible thing to do. A well-tended garden brings splendid returns in both health and food. Our pioneer families realized this and that human beings can get, but that it helps put the family on a self-supporting basis where every den patch in the rear of his man, it alone or but. Then there was a long period when this "thrifty" habit seems to have gone out of fashion. It should have one.

We were too busy trying to accumulate wealth without working to think about the homely affairs of life. That the old time habit of being retired augurs well for the future. We are not yet out of the depression and any stretch of imagination, and thousands of families still find that food from the garden is not only the best but that human beings can get, but that it helps put the family on a self-supporting basis where every den patch in the rear of his man, it alone or but. Then there was a long period when this "thrifty" habit seems to have gone out of fashion. It should have one.
