

Zuckerman Will Head United Jewish Appeal

Paul Zuckerman of Franklin, president of Velvet Food Products, Inc., of Livonia, is the new general chairman of United Jewish Appeal.

His move into the top spot in the far-flung organization that aids Israel and Jews all over the world coincided with the closing dinner of the 1972 UJA National Conference in New York Saturday, Dec. 11.

Zuckerman, ninth general chairman of UJA, has been called "the peanut butter king" because his firm is the world's largest independent producer of peanut butter. It is located at 3911 Schoolcraft.

He and his wife, Helen, and their two children live at 2755 Fairway Hills Drive, Franklin.

Accepting the general chairmanship, in which he succeeds Edward Ginsberg of Cleveland, Zuckerman said his goal is "to mobilize all of the strength and resources of the American Jewish community to keep our promise to the people of Israel and Jews all over the world."

"We shall keep the promise of a haven in Israel for all those who seek freedom from oppression, freedom to live as Jews among Jews," he added.

Zuckerman also disclosed plans for a 1972 "Keep the Promise" campaign which he said would raise a record amount and be the most extensive ever launched by the United Jewish Appeal.

He said UJA would help bring 50,000 new immigrants to Israel during the coming year and help them become absorbed in their new society as well as striving to bring a life of dignity and opportunity to many newcomers living in sub-standard conditions.

ZUCKERMAN, a University of Detroit graduate, said in an interview that the UJA hopes to raise about $450 million, of which $300 million will go to Israel. The money goes to non-governmental agencies supplying medicine, housing and job training for immigrants.

Zuckerman, who was born in Ukraine, commented that defense needs restrict the amount of money Israel can spend for humanitarian goals.

"Israel is in an uncomfortable position," he added. "Because of defense needs, the burden more than ever falls on world Jewry, especially American."

Distinguished Communal Service.

THE DETROIT Jewish Community has honored him by planting a "Zuckerman Forest" of 10,000 trees in the Jerusalem hills, and he, in turn, has honored the community by building the Detroit Park in Jerusalem—a park which is being used as a place where Israeli and Arab children can learn to play with one another in the hopes that they will learn to live with one another.

With his election as UJA general chairman, he also joins the 11-member executive of the Jewish agency, which directs humanitarian programs on behalf of the human needs of Israel's people.

Zuckerman was named by former President Lyndon B. Johnson to head the United States Food for Peace Committee in Michigan. In Detroit, he served as president of the United Jewish Charities and as director of the United Foundation. He also held the post of vice president of Detroit's Jewish Welfare Federation and was chairman of the All-Official Jewish Campaign in 1961 and 1962.

Zuckerman is the chairman and chief executive officer of the Velvet O'Donnell Corp., a food products and liquor importing and distributing firm.

At the 1963 St. Erik's World's Fair in Stockholm, the U.S. Department of Commerce set up a large exhibition booth to display the product of Zuckerman's firm—the first time peanut butter was ever on official exhibit to interest European trade.

Mrs. Zuckerman is active in the Allied Jewish Campaign Women's Division, Livonia, and the National Council of Jewish Women.

Hanukkah Party Set

The Hebrew school students of Congregation Beth Abraham - Hilliel will hold a Hanukkah celebration at 10 a.m., Sunday, Dec. 12, in the synagogue on Maple Road between Lakeside and Middle Belt, West Bloomfield.

The congregation will inaugurate its season of late Friday evening services and Oneg Shabbat programs in the main sanctuary of the new synagogue at 8:15 p.m., Friday, Dec. 17.

Dr. Bernard M. Goldman will speak on "Hanukkah Archeology." He is with the department of art and art history of Wayne State University.

Polish Carols To Be Sung At Concert

A new work entitled "Fantasia on Polish Christmas Carols" will be featured at the 25th annual Christmas concert at Orchard Lake Schools at 2:30 p.m., Sunday, Dec. 12. The concert will be in the campus gymnasium.

The "Fantasia" was written by Thomas M. Kurus, organist at Blessed Sacrament Cathedral, Detroit, especially for the School Cantors, a 35-member male chorus consisting of college and seminary students.

The School also will sing the "Magnificat," with string accompaniment.

THE 59-YEAR-OLD Zuckerman has a home in Caesarea, Israel, and has attained wide recognition as a

Capuchins Give Land Back To The Indians

The Midwest Capuchin Province of St. Joseph has transferred title of the religious community's former novitiate building and orphanage at Baraga, Mich., to the Keweenaw Bay Indian Community.

The land and buildings, with an estimated market value of $250,000, were turned over to the Indian Community for one dollar.

Capuchin Father Rupert Dorn, provincial of the Midwest Capuchins, said the province took the action as a sign of practicing rather than just talking about social justice.

"The province purchased the land and buildings in 1956," Father Dorn explained. "Up until two years ago we used the facility for the religious training of our future brothers and priests. When we consolidated our training program we no longer needed the facility."

FATHER DORN said that the delegates to the Provincial Chapter in 1970 discussed the disposal of the property. The Indian community sent a representative to the meeting to ask the Capuchins to consider selling the property to them for $100,000 which they felt they could raise from various sources.

The delegates to the Chapter voted to accept the offer.

"The Indian Community tried for a year to raise the money," Father Dorn said. "They were unable to get any government, church or charitable group to consider giving all or part of the purchase money. However, some groups did express willingness to consider making project grants if and when the tribe would receive the buildings and property."

Father Dorn said that in the final analysis the Capuchins felt that the Keweenaw Bay Indian Community's need for the property was more important than the province's need for a financial return for the property.

"We had another buyer and with the rising costs in educating our brothers and priests, we could have put the money to good use. However, we felt the greater obligation was to the Indian people whom the buildings were originally built to serve."

THE CAPUCHIN PROVINCIAL said that the province might be criticized for giving away valuable property and at the same time admitting that they needed funds.

"We feel, however, that when the critics realize the important role this facility will play in helping these Indian people determine their own future, they will criticize us less harshly," Father Dorn said.

"Most people will admit that we have made some pretty sad mistakes in this country since we came here. One of the mistakes is the life style of the Indian people. Yet, now they hesitate to give the Indian people an opportunity to determine their own future. At least, in this case, if mistakes are made, the Indian people will have the opportunity of making the mistakes themselves."

The three-story brick building being turned over to the community has 50 rooms, which were used as bedrooms, plus community rooms, a large room that was used as a chapel, a kitchenally-equipped kitchen, dining room, tailor shop and full basement. There is also a smaller stone building on the property, which was formerly an orphanage. The agreement allows this building, and the Indian people will have the opportunity of making the mistakes themselves."

Kol Ami Youth Plan Service

The junior high youth choir of Temple Kol Ami will lead Hanukkah celebrations of the congregation on Friday, Dec. 17.

The celebration will be held in Birmingham Unitarian Church, Lone Pine at Woodward, beginning at 7:30 p.m. Dr. Irving Friedman of Birmingham directs the choir. The service will be followed by a festive Oneg Shabbat.

Hanukkah begins this year on Sunday, Dec. 12, at sundown. Otherwise known as the Feast of Lights, it commemorates the victory in 165 BC of the tiny Jewish army known as the Maccabees over the mighty Syrian Army.

Candlelight Concert Set

The choirs of Faith Lutheran Church in Livonia will be joined by string, woodwinds and brass ensembles for the church's candlelight Christmas concert at 7 p.m., Sunday, Dec. 12.

Mrs. Marie Schmitz is organist and choir director for the concert. The church is located at 3000 Five Mile.
