

Watch For The 1936 Ford V-8

With its first appearance the Ford V-8 will score another triumph in the low price car field. Retaining the features of the 1935 models which have contributed to its becoming the fastest selling automobile on the market, the 1936 Ford will have many other outstanding improvements in beauty, design and in performance—yet the price of the Ford V-8 makes it within the income of everyone.

Make your appointment now with Olin Russell, Inc. for a demonstration of the New Ford V-8.

Emergency Call, Old Style

MANY living citizens of Michigan can well remember the anxious delay that once had to be endured before help could be reached in time of sudden sickness. They can remember the hurried dressing, the panic, and the rush out to fair weather or foul in search of a doctor. They can recall, too, the long minutes of tortured uncertainty that meanwhile passed in the sickroom. And the memories of a few must include tragic memories of lives that slipped away before the doctor could reach the patient's bedside.

Among the greatest boons that the telephone has brought to the modern Michigan home is the protection it gives when sudden illness strikes. Delay is now cut to a minimum. The mere lifting of a receiver instantly puts the sickroom in touch with the doctor. Advice on first-aid measures can follow immediately. And then—in less time than was once required for dressing and lighting a lantern—the worried household has the comforting knowledge that the doctor is already speeding on his way.

The routine uses we make of the telephone have come to be accepted as a matter of course. With it the housewife shops from her own home; it keeps us all in touch with family and friends; it runs many errands daily; it makes possible a last-minute change in plans.

These uses we take for granted. It requires an emergency to emphasize the telephone's importance when there is urgent need of a doctor, the fire department or police protection.

The fact that we accept the routine use of the telephone as a matter of course is a significant gauge of its value and dependability. Experience has taught us to rely upon it. And that is the kind of service which the Michigan Bell Telephone Company is constantly striving to supply to the people of this State—a service that shall be dependable, prompt, courteous and available at any hour of the day or night.
