THE FARMINGTON 4, Observerland's newest theater complex will look like this according to architect's plans. The theater is scheduled for completion by next spring.

4-Way Theater Will Hold 1,000

Plans to construct a completely-automated fourplex theater in the Freeway Shopping Center in the Farmington Freeway Industrial Park, Grand River and 10 Mile at 1-96, have been announced by Sol Krim, president of Krim Theatrical Enterprises of Southfield.

Designed by Robert B. Alpern Associates, architects, the new theater will house the most modern equipment available. It will be scheduled for completion by spring of 1972.

THE "FARMINGTON 4" theater will accommodate approximately 1,000 patrons. Its four units, built around a common lobby, will present four different shows simultaneously.

According to Krim, a third-generation theater entrepreneur, the new theater will house the most modern equipment available. It will include new projectors that employ lamps in place of the old carbon units, instant automatic switching from one projector to another, and one-hour (rather than the outdated 20-minute) film reels.

The Krim Theater Circuit, which already has a triplex theater under construction at the Brighton Mall and still other multi-unit theaters on the drawing boards, has gauged its current surge of building activity to meet the growing demand for spectator entertainment.

KRIM EXPLAINED that theater box offices grossed a whopping $1.62 billion in 1970 and that 1971 would have registered an even higher figure - had it not been for the lack of more than a single "block-buster" type picture such as "Love Story" during the current year.
