Play the Motoring Game As You Do Other Sports

Motoring is America's biggest and best game but it has three very definite sets of rules and many good fellows who would blush to break a single rule or violation of their favorite sport don't hesitate to break all the rules of the traffic game and may even brag about it.

"Legislators have made some rules, decency has made others, and old Professor Physics has made still others," he said. "The time has also come when everyone cannot write his own rules. We must follow those set down for us. If we don't, the rules are going to be made so rough and the umpires will be so many and so strict that there won't be any fun left."

MRS. SCHULTE TO HAVE CHARGE OF SEALS

Mrs. John J. Schulte will have charge temporarily in the Farmington area of the sale of Red Cross seals, which began Thursday morning, and will continue until Christmas.

This is the twentieth annual seal sale, and it will provide funds for Michigan's fight against tuberculosis during 1936. A grand total of 62,000,000 seals went out in the mails this week to homes all over Michigan.

Officials of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association and affiliated organizations throughout the state were optimistic as to the outcome of this year's sale. Requests for food supplies of Christmas seals, they believed, were indicative of a substantial increase over the 1934 mark.

Theodore J. Werle, executive secretary of the Association, announced this week that ministers and clergy all over the state had been invited to participate in "Christmas Seal Sunday," December 1. On the evening of the same day a special Christmas seal program will be presented over the Blue Network of the National Broadcasting Company, the time being 10:30 to 11 p. m. and the Michigan outlet stations WXYZ and WOOD.

Traveler to Give 2 Lectures in Detroit

"The Problem and Challenge of Soviet Russia" and the strange life in the submarine jungles of the tropical seas are the subjects of two lectures with motion pictures which Dr. Michael M. Dorzas, world traveler and authority on Russia, and Arthur C. Pillsbury, natural scientist and author, will present Sunday, December 1, on the World Adventure Series at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

With his diving helmet and water-proof camera, Pillsbury dove under the waves of Samoa's famous Pago Pago harbor. There he pictured queer sea creatures, fantastic coral formations, multi-colored fish. He will show starfish eating and lovely underwater flowers in full bloom.

DONDERO TRACES BILL THROUGH TO ENACTMENT

(This is the second of three articles by Congressman Dondero, explaining how Congress is organized and operates.)

Many thousand bills are introduced in each session of Congress but only a small percentage ever become law of the land. The path from introduction to final enactment is long and beset with many obstacles. Residents of the 17th Michigan District have asked many questions concerning this procedure and Congressman George A. Dondero, in this article, endeavors to give the desired information.

After a bill has been introduced it is referred to its proper committee. If it concerns a harbor improvement it is referred to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors; if it has to do with banking it goes to the Committee on Banking and Currency, etc.

Once in committee the bill is given individual consideration and if the bill is of sufficient importance it will be given a public hearing. If the bill wins the committee's approval it is reported out and placed upon one of the House calendars.

In the House there are three calendars. If a bill provides for the raising of revenue, for a general appropriation, or is of a public character directly or indirectly appropriating money or property, it is placed on the Union calendar. If the bill is of a public character not raising revenue nor directly or indirectly appropriating money or property, it is listed on the House calendar. If it is of a private character, it goes on the Private calendar.

Generally each bill on the calendar is brought before the House by the committee reporting it out. Debate usually follows and final passage of the bill is reported into the Committee of the Whole House. Amendments, if any, when agreed to, are then included and the Committee of the Whole House reports the bill back to the House for a vote.

In the event that the House votes favorably on the bill it is sent over to the Senate for further action. If the Senate approves the bill without change the Speaker of the House and the Vice President sign the bill and transmit it to the President for his signature or his veto.

If the Senate adds any amendments the bill goes to a conference, each house appointing a number of conferees to consider the amendments, who report back to their respective houses. The conference report then comes up for action and if approved by both houses the Speaker and the Vice President sign and transmit it to the President.

The President may sign the bill or allow it to automatically become a law. He may refer the bill within ten days; or he may veto the bill. In the event that Congress has adjourned the President may also kill a bill by failing to sign it. This latter method of the House and the bill is known as the "pocket veto."

Should the President veto a bill, the Congress may desire to pass the bill over his veto. This can only be accomplished by a two-thirds vote of both houses. In the first session of the 74th Congress an attempt was made to pass the Patman bill providing for the immediate payment of the adjusted service certificates of World War veterans certified by the War over the veto of President Roosevelt. The House of Representatives voted by a substantial margin to override this veto, but in the Senate the bill failed by a two-thirds majority, and the measure failed to become a law.

In a later article Congressman Dondero will explain the different methods of voting in the House of Representatives.

News items always welcome.

Advertising is nothing more than a conversation between yourself and your merchant. He pays for it but it saves you money.

ADVERTISEMENTS Are Your Guides To Value. Experts can roughly estimate the value of a product by looking at it. More accurately, by handling and examining it. Its appearance, its texture, the "feel" and the balance of it, all mean something to their trained eyes and fingers. But no one person can be an expert on steel, brass, wood, leather, fudge, etc., and all of the material that makes up a list of personal purchases. An even expert are fooled, sometimes, by concealed flaws and imperfections. There is a surer index of value than the senses of sight and touch... knowledge of the maker's name and for what it stands. Here is the most certain method, outside that of actual use, for judging the value of any manufactured goods. Here is the only guarantee against careless workmanship, or use of shoddy materials. This is one important reason why it pays to read advertisements and to buy advertised goods. The advertised product is worthy of your confidence. Merchandise must be good or it couldn't be consistently Advertised. BUY ADVERTISED GOODS.

How Much Does Advertising Cost? Not long ago, we heard a house-to-house canvasser tell a prospect: "I can sell you this gadget 25 per cent cheaper because my firm doesn't advertise." How much does advertising actually cost? As a customer every day in your life, you are entitled to know.

Automobiles are extensively advertised. But only 3 1/2 per cent of the selling price of a car goes for advertising, or about $17 on a $500 machine. Before large scale advertising, you paid $1,000 for a car not so good. Coffee, canned foods, soft drinks, etc., have large advertising budgets. Only 5 1/2 per cent of the selling cost, or one-half cent on a 10-cent can, is used for promotional advertising. The average retail store spends from 1 to 4 per cent on advertising. That costs you from 1 cent to 4 cents on a dollar purchase. Is it worth your while to pay this much for the knowledge that advertising gives you? And do you think the low prices on extensively advertised products would be possible without volume production that is entirely dependent on advertising? Newspaper advertising pays you dividends—it pays to advertise.
