Lloyd's Letter Dear People:— $250 words won't express ourselves any better when we say get located right and ease the strain. (Locations are our business.) You'll feel better, sleep better, and eat better. (To mention a few.) Where's the old ice card that told the number of pounds. (Of ice) They changed that, but things are bigger and better for it. (We still need ice.) Maybe you don't need a change but if you would like to (and who wouldn't) drop in some day or night. (We can at least talk about it, i. e., property.) We look at a lot of property, why not yours? (It doesn't cost anything to look.) Sincerely yours, LLOYD S. GUILLEN Real Estate Insurance (Open Evenings) P. S. Miss Jeanette Camp of Indiana sued the owner of a car for injuries the car did, and since he was insured in a mutual company, sued 40 other subscribers in that company, too. (Our auto insurance is in a stock company where such goodness can happen. (Thank goodness.)

Smith Leaves Drug Business for Music (Continued from Page One) early there were 12,000 places selling sheet-music in America, there are only 1,200 from coast to coast. The public, hearing a popular song played into its ears from every station a half dozen times a day, gets so sick of it in a few weeks that it comes almost to dread the tune. But in spite of all this, the former druggist is not discouraged, and goes on writing love ballads, jazz tunes, and has even written 100 operas. He has composed 400 songs, four or five of the songs he wrote in the past year. His last has been "arranged" for him by the same man who arranged "A Little Gypsy Tea Room" the song which has been a division of the song-production business all by itself. Asked what he considers his best number, Mr. Smith replied that he "likes a movie" but that his friends consider his best to be a song entitled, "Bring Back My Subnoonet Girl."

"All the Difference In the World" Like a touch of lipstick to a woman or a shave to a man, a fresh coat of paint on a house makes all the difference in the world. Shabby, almost dilapidated buildings can easily and economically be made to look like new with but a small investment in paint and time. During this season of "clean-up" and "paint-up," we feel it our duty to warn home owners, who may be planning to re-decorate, of the folly of buying "cheap" paint. So-called "cheap" paint is in reality the most expensive, based on the length of time it "stands-up." If one winter's cold and one summer's blistering heat will cause cracking and peeling to a degree where painting is necessitated the following year, then it has indeed been expensive. For those who want a long-life, waterproof paint that will stand the most severe weather and retain its original gloss and solid finish, we offer a complete line of world-famous TRUSCON PAINTS in grades to cover any surface. When you buy TRUSCON PAINT, you buy with an "eye for the future."

Century-Old Landmark Surrenders to Time (Continued from page one) Had Many Owners Among the list of owners of the mill to be found the names Wess, Parrshall, Rheume, Orvas and Delling. The latter sold the mill to Peter Hardenburg in 1887, and the long and continuous operating of the mill by two generations of Hardenburgs, Peter and his son, John, established the name of the flour and the name of the mill as "Hardenburg." At that time, Farmington, or Permanubco Hollow, consisted of a few scattered houses, soap factory, store and saw mill, besides the grist mill. I have often heard my father say that he could remember the time when there was more business done in Sleepy Hollow than in the village of Farmington.

The saw mill was situated just below the flour mill and was owned and operated by Edward Steele and Byro French, the latter a young man who had worked for the mill and later started a saw mill in the village of Farmington. The mill was destroyed by fire in 1837, when the iron, gearing and dam were purchased by Mrs. Gage, who himself being a millwright, built the mill and after a few years sold it to Collins Miller. He in turn sold it to Warren Servis and Mark Arnold, who were both coopera, and carried on their trade in connection with the mill.

Center of Social Life Here in the early days was the center of social and financial life of the neighborhood. Here the stalwart young men of the village bathed in the waters of the pond, caught fish from its sparkling waters, and in the summer and spent upon its smooth surface in the winter. On moonlight nights the hills which sloped downward to the mill were ever echoing and re-echoing the laughter and shouts and exclamations of boys and girls as they coasted downward.

Residents Attend Farewell Dinner Mr. and Mrs. Archie Leonard attended the testimonial banquet at Stevens Hall. The party was a necessary honoring Miss Harriet Van Antwerp, a "helper" to the rural teachers in the county. Miss Van Antwerp and Mr. Leonard were associated in educational work for many years. Mr. Leonard was deputy school commissioner in Oakland county a few years ago.

Among the rural teachers from this community attending the farewell dinner for Miss Van Antwerp is Miss Jeanette Camp of Indiana, who is joining the staff of the State Department of Education at Lansing, were Miss Adaline Wilson, Miss Eileen Lapham and Mrs. Harley Gibson. Mrs. A. L. Ross, Mrs. John McClelland and Mrs. Harold Westphall attended a luncheon and shower honoring Mrs. Kenneth Copeman of Pontiac at the home of Mrs. Robert McClelland in Pontiac on Friday.

Century-Old Landmark Surrenders to Time (Continued from page one) With second place in the league at stake, the Farmington High School baseball team plays Clarkston Friday afternoon on the Farmington diamond in the last league game of the season. Although Clarkston has a better league record, the teams by comparative parity are about even. The Clarkston team which has only lost one league game, will be fighting for victory, with the prize the second place position in the league standings. Farmington, with two league losses, will also be fighting for a win which would mean a tie with Clarkston and possibly one other team for second place. Walled Lake with no defeats to date is virtually assured of winning the league championship. With a makeshift team on the field, Farmington lost the first game of a home-and-home series with Northville 17-5 at Northville Friday afternoon. Benches Regulars As a disciplinary measure, Coach Harold Kammerer benched several players of his starting line-up and was forced to use pitchers as outfielders and outfielders as infielders for the game. Between rain and games, the only opportunity the team had to practice was Thursday and several of the varsity boys failed to report. Consequently only the players who had been out to practice Thursday were allowed to play in the Northville game Friday. Although the Farmington players only committed two errors, several batted balls by Northville were not safe for his month has been out, but the substitutes being familiar with the positions they were playing. In addition to the weak fielding, Mitchell, Farmington pitcher, who has not been up to his 1935 standard all year, had an exceptionally bad day and was finally driven from the mound. He was replaced by DeYoung who pitched well. He was later removed for Durham. Northville hit freely 11 times and were issued five free trips to first by Farmington pitchers. Farmington could only get eight hits and no walks from the offerings of Wess Northville pitcher. Westphall Stars Westphal, Northville catcher, was far and away the best baseball player on the field Friday. It was remarked after the game by coaches that he is one of the best high school catchers developed in this territory in several years. In addition to handling Wess's pitches flawlessly, he got three hits out of four trips to the plate. Farmington's revamped line-up included Himmelspach, regular center fielder at short stop; Clark, Farmington's ace pitcher, in left field; W. Werschel, catcher; R. Werschel, regular left fielder; and base runner, first base; Linklater, right fielder, in center field; Turner at third base; Davis and Schulkins divided the play in right field, and Mitchell, DeYoung and Durham pitchers.

Former Smith Store Being Modernized Work is being rushed on modernization of the Farmington Drug Co. store, formerly owned by Stanley F. Smith, and sold by him recently to Mahlon S. Bradley of Farmington and Maxwell J. Smith of Clarencville. The purchase is making extensive changes in the place, which will be in charge of Mr. Bradley, who has heretofore been in charge of a drug store at Five Points. It is expected that the changes in the store will be completed within the coming week.

Rev. F. Bagnall Retiring, Will Live in Farmington Rev. Fred Bagnall, father of Frederick W. Bagnall of this city, is retiring from active duty in ministerial service in the Congregational church at the Junction, and he then expects to make his home with Mr. and Mrs. Bagnall in Farmington. In June, he will have completed 50 years of service in the Congregational ministry. He has been recognized by received tributes and honors at one of the meetings of the Annual Congregational Conference held last week in Grand Rapids. At present, Rev. Bagnall is minister in charge of the Congregational church at New Haven, Michigan.
