

City Sued to Void Tax on Ely Farm

While the suit is new and officials have just been served, it is anticipated that the City may offer several items of defense. One circumstance is that over the years during which there were disputes on the Ely taxes, agreements were made by the City with the late Mr. Ely for payment of the taxes, in at least one of which the 1928 city tax was included. An effort to arrive at a compromise recently failed, representatives of Mrs. Ely asking the City Commission to cancel the 1928 tax in return for payment of taxes for later years.

The Commission expressed inclination to make an adjustment, sought legal advice, and were advised by Schulte and Fare, municipal counsel, that there is no authority in law for the Commission to cancel the taxes.

Bond and Wilson, attorneys, represent the plaintiff.

WHO ARE YOU?

The Romance of Your Name

By RUBY HASKINS ELLIS

A Wilson?

IF YOUR name is Wilson, you will perhaps be interested to know that in the beginning it was Williams. It is believed by the best authorities that it signified "the son of William."

The Rev. John Wilson, one of the earliest settlers in this country of Boston, Mass., was the son of the Rev. William Wilson, of England. He came to America on Governor Winthrop's fleet and was the first minister of the first church in Boston. He died in 1687.

There were many others of this name who came to New England and settled there at a very early period. Among them was William Wilson, a settler in Concord, who was a soldier in the Continental army.

Among those who came later was James Wilson, the ancestor of Woodrow Wilson. He came from County Down, Ireland, and located in Philadelphia, where he became editor of the Aurora, a newspaper once edited by Franklin D. Roosevelt, the brilliant grandson of Benjamin Franklin.

Franklin, James Wilson married Anne Adams and moved to Ohio, where he affiliated with other newspapers and became a member of the state legislature. His son, Joseph Ruggles Wilson, father of Woodrow Wilson, was born in Cleveland, Ohio. He married Janet Woodrow and went to Virginia. He became a distinguished clergyman and was minister of several churches in the Southland. Woodrow Wilson was born in Staunton, Va., but received his early education in North Carolina and Georgia.

It is interesting to note that Janet Woodrow, mother of the war President, was of Scotch descent, and her father likewise was a minister. Her Scottish forbears had for 600 years furnished distinguished clergymen and notable men in Scotland. Doctor Woodrow, her father, was a graduate of Glasgow university and served 10 years as a minister of the Independent Congregation at Carlisle, England.
