

Dr. Clark Says He's Guilty

FARMINGTON
Dr. Ronald E. Clark, former Farmington Township physician, pleaded guilty to manslaughter Friday in Detroit Recorder's Court and returned that same day to Jackson State Prison.

Clark made the unexpected plea as his trial began Friday against the advice of his defense attorney, James E. Wells of Southfield, and is back in prison to await sentencing on Aug. 13.

WHEN THE JUDGE asked for Clark's plea as the trial started, the doctor emotionally complained of conditions in Wayne County Jail where he has been staying and proclaimed he would "plead guilty to anything" to get out of the county jail and back to Jackson.

Clark was being tried for the March 1967 death of Mrs. Hannah Bowerbank, a Detroit resident and former office manager for Clark.

The doctor has already served three years in Jackson after being convicted of manslaughter for the November 1967 death of Mrs. Grace Neil, Livonia resident and also his former office manager.

FRIDAY'S unexpected plea brings to an apparent end a series of legal maneuvers which started when the Wayne County prosecutor's office indicted Clark on a charge against Clark for Mrs. Bowerbank's death.

At pre-trial examination, Recorder's Judge James McNally III recommended the manslaughter charge be dropped and the doctor be tried for first-degree murder.

The first-degree trial was scheduled to begin July 16 but was postponed a couple of times. During the delay, rumors were reported out that the prosecution wanted to make a deal that if Clark would plead guilty to a reduced charge of manslaughter, the state would advise that the sentence be made concurrent with the conviction so Clark would be eligible for parole and a release.

WELLS, at the time, reportedly advised Clark not to plead guilty to a reduced charge so his innocence could be proven by trial.

At this point, assistant prosecutor Avery Weisswasser submitted the reduced charge of manslaughter before the court and Clark pleaded guilty.

Wells left town after court adjourned Friday and has been unavailable for comment.

Clark spent about five weeks in Wayne County Jail last January when he was housed there to await pre-trial exam on the Bowerbank manslaughter charge.

A week ago he was brought back to Wayne County Jail from the state prison to await beginning of the trial. A spokesman for Wells said the doctor became demoralized by deplorable conditions in the jail and "simply gave up."

Neither Clark nor Wells will not know until Aug. 13 whether the sentence for Mrs. Bowerbank's death will be made concurrent with the first sentencing.
