LOWER MICHIGAN INCLUDED IN 27 DANGER COUNTRIES

Scattered over lower Michigan and the Upper Peninsula are 27 counties where the tuberculosis death rate is higher than the state average of 41.3 deaths to 100,000 population, weakening by 27 links Michigan's chain of tuberculosis control, the Michigan tuberculosis Association reported this week.

"No one in Michigan, regardless of whether his own county death rate is comparatively low, can afford to overlook the persistence of tuberculosis in neighboring communities," Theodore J. Werle, executive secretary, said, "for no county is safe from the disease until every county is safe. The disease recognizes no imaginary boundary lines."

Protection against tuberculosis for all can be provided best by preventing further spread of the disease from the counties where a high number of deaths occur each year, the Association believes. The Association aims to concentrate on preventive measures, particularly in those counties where the need is most urgent.

"I'll never do it again. It's too much trouble," said Mrs. Alice Brown, 75, of Muskegon, Ohio, as she and Charley Smith, 77, applied for a marriage license.

Christian Science Services

Eight Church of Christ, Scientist, of Detroit, extends a cordial invitation to attend their church service on Sunday mornings and testimonial meetings on Wednesday evenings. These services are held in the auditorium of Redford High School. Details of hours and location are published in a regular weekly advertisement which the church now carries in this newspaper.

"Christ Jesus" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches throughout the world Sunday, February 27.

The Golden Text, from II Corinthians 4:5, is: "We preach ourselves, but Christ Jesus the Lord; and ourselves your servants for Jesus' sake."

Among the Bible citations is the passage (Matthew 9:36): "And Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every sickness and every disease among the people."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science text book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 131): "The mission of Jesus confirmed prophecy, and explained the social conditions of the time as natural demonstrations of the divine power, demonstrations which were not understood."

Chinaware-Luxury Until

About Two Centuries Ago

As late as 200 years ago China was a luxury of the wealthy. Indeed many considered it economy to use solid silver tableware, which did not break and add the cost of occasional replacements. Everyware tableware was generally of pewter, writes Emerald Bristow in the Richmond Times-Dispatch.

For the poor and for the servants' tables wood, leather or tin served for plates, bowls and drinking mugs. Stoneware and crude crockery had been produced since Tudor times, but was used sparingly because of its being easily broken when provided for servants' use and because it was never a beautiful product of fine workmanship worthy to be brought to the tables of gentlemen of fashion.

Probably the first English dinner table set entirely with a china service was the state dinner given by James I in the early 1590s. All the plates and bowls were imported Chinese porcelain, and the guests were given the plates they had used as souvenirs of the memorable occasion. Oriental porcelain was the only fine china to be had until about a century later, and being imported by slow sailing vessels or tedious lengthy caravans all across Europe, this was too expensive for ordinary use at table even for the wealthy.

So plates and bowls from the Orient were kept as prized ornaments, like the Chinese vases and colorful little porcelain figurines. English and other European potters tried to copy the beautiful Chinese porcelain. They discovered two interesting ceramic fabrics in their tile experiments that were all doomed to failure until special clays were smuggled from China. These were the salt glaze ware, which was not much admired in its own day but is much sought by collectors.

Dentists Once Trained

on Apprenticeship Plan

Prior to the inauguration of formal dental education, practitioners received their training by serving as apprentices to dentists already in practice. This method of instruction continued throughout the world until 1840, writes Harry Bear in the Richmond Times-Dispatch. American dentistry has developed through schools for instruction, scientific societies and journals for the dissemination of its literature.

The founding of the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery in 1840, the first dental school in the world, was the beginning of formal dental education. The Baltimore college, the publication of the American Journal of Dental Science in 1839, and the organization of the American Society of Dental Surgeons in 1840 marked the real beginning of the development of American dentistry. In 1840, a student was required to spend only four months in college to receive the degree of doctor of dental surgery.

The entrance requirements and the content of the dental course varied for many years. In 1884 the curriculum had advanced to a two-year course of five months each. When the University College of Medicine was established in Richmond in 1893 the dental course was three years in length. The admission requirements consisted of a "good English education."

Practitioners have for many years observed that affections in one part of the body manifested symptoms elsewhere. During the past century writers have recorded observations of diseases which may have had their origin in other organs of the body—the teeth, for instance.

"None But Americans on Guard" There is a tradition that during an especially critical period of the Revolution General Washington issued the order, "Put none but Americans on guard tonight." There is no record that such an order was ever issued, but that it might have been issued is suggested by a circular letter which Washington sent to his regimental commanders in 1777 regarding recruits for his body guard: "You will therefore send me none but natives." A few months before Thomas Hickey, a pretended deserter from the British army, had tried to poison Washington and had been convicted and hanged. "Put none but Americans on guard" was one of the mottoes of the Know Nothing party which was organized about 1852.

Use of Word "Bonus"

The word "bonus" is a Latin adjective meaning good, and is used in England in the sense of gift. In that country it was first applied to a dividend or distribution of a surplus to policy holders of a life insurance company, while in this country, in industrial and commercial circles, it came to mean something extra, or to the good. It was not until after the World war, however, that a gift or additional compensation to soldiers was called a bonus.

Cattle in Michigan Increase Two Percent

More cattle, less hogs and sheep, and the same number of horses and mules on Michigan farms January 1, 1938, compared with numbers on farms January 1, 1937, are shown by the annual inventory estimates of livestock on farms, according to Verne H. Church, Senior Agricultural Statistician of the Michigan Co-operative Crop Reporting Service. The increase in Michigan cattle is 2 per cent. Cows and heifers 2 years old and over kept for milk have been increased 4 per cent during the past year and young heifers under 2 years have been increased about 2 per cent. Beef cattle kept for breeding show a gain of 4 per cent and beef steers 10 per cent.

The situation for the United States is somewhat at variance with Michigan. Decreases in the number of horses, mules and cattle and increases in the number of hogs and sheep are noted; however, the change from a year ago in numbers for the entire United States is relatively small for all species. When the number of all species of livestock are converted to an animal unit basis, which allows for differences in size and feed requirements of the several species, the change amounts to a reduction of only 0.5 per cent.

The farm value of all species of Michigan livestock on January 1, 1938 is estimated at $142,610,000 compared with $144,124,000 a year ago. This small decrease in valuation is due mostly to the prevailing lower prices for horses and mules.

For the United States, the value of all species of livestock is placed at $4,695,520,000 compared with $4,819,311,000 a year ago.

Adaptability Led to Use

of Gold and Silver Coins

The selection of gold and silver for the principal monetary purposes was due to their adaptability, says the Indianapolis News. In addition to their being desirable, they possess the following qualities demonstrated to be requisite to a just and equitable medium of value: Relative scarcity, portability (containing large values in a small bulk), durability, homogeneity (or uniformity), divisibility (capable of being divided into small parts and again united without appreciable loss).

The use of the metals as money by weight proved a cumbersome process; and a coining device was introduced, probably by the Greeks about 900 B. C. The bank check came into use as a means of saving the transfer of coined money. The bank note is an evolution of the preceding forms, being a promise of the bank to pay the specified amount on demand. The Bank of Sweden is credited with having first issued this form of money in 1658.

The scarcity of gold and silver, the need of bills of exchange and of a money more convenient to carry, and the issuance of government credits forced on bankrupt nations brought about the use of paper money in European countries. Colonial America early adopted this medium of exchange from the English.

Paper money in America first was issued by Massachusetts in 1690. The object was not to supply any supposed lack of a medium for trade, but to satisfy the demands of some clamorous soldiers. The first issue of money under authority of the Continental congress was dated May 10, 1775, but not placed in circulation until the following August.

Michigan Behind In Civil Service Jobs

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced open competitive examinations for the following positions: Landscape architect, various grades, $2,500 to $3,800 a year. National Park Service, and the National Capitol Park and Planning Commission. Medical pathologist (research), $3,800 a year, and associate medical pathologist (research), $3,200 a year. National Institute of Health, U. S. Public Health Service.

All States except Colorado, Kansas, Maryland, Minnesota, Missouri, North Dakota, Rhode Island, Utah, Virginia, Washington, and the District of Columbia, have received less than their quota of appointments in the apportioned departmental service at Washington, D. C.

Full information may be obtained from the Secretary of the United States Civil Service Board of Examiners at the post office at Farmington 25 customhouse in any city which has a post office of the first or second class, or from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

RESPONSIBLE TO THE PUBLIC

TELEPHONE SERVICE, so interwoven with every phase of modern life, is a public necessity. It is needed day and night. It vitally concerns the general welfare.

Michigan's telephone workers realize they carry a responsibility not imposed on the average industry. How fully they accept that responsibility is shown by the "spirit of service" that has long been a tradition among them... a tradition that grows out of the faithful discharge of routine duty, and a ready sacrifice of personal convenience and comfort when emergencies have endangered the service.
