Farmington Draws Bye Into Tournament Finals

The annual regional basketball tournament will be held in Milford Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 4, 5 and 6.

The Farmington High School team will play Saturday evening at 9 o'clock when they meet the winner of the Grand Blue-Pentagon game as the result of drawing.

Only three schools are entered in the Class B competition at Milford.

All three of these schools have good records for the year so far and are anxious to win the tournament and be allowed to go to the large state meet later in the month.

Farmington is anxious to win the game, as that would make them the champions of this division and would entitle them to a silver cup.

Also if Farmington wins, they will be in the Regional Tournament.

We hope to have a large delegation of rooters in the stands to cheer on the team and keep them in a fighting spirit.

If you are going to the game remember that good sportsmanship is the mark of an educated group. Let's keep our sportsmanship record clean.

SUPERINTENDENT BURNS TELLS OF HIS TRAVELS

Robert Burns, Superintendent of Farmington High School, gave an interesting talk Wednesday, February 23, at the Civics Club meeting. He displayed some of the articles he had gathered while abroad in Egypt, China, England, India and France.

Beautiful fans of peacock feathers from China and Egypt, carved ivory elephants, Chinese chopsticks, foreign bills and coins, carved ivory beads from Shanghai and a tricky cigarette box which the students had a puzzling time trying to open were among the articles.

Mr. Burns answered any questions the members of the club wished to ask him. He showed the members his passport and told what he had to do to get it.

For months at a time he did not hear one word of English on the ship.

We hope Mr. Burns will again tell us of his travels.

Students of the public speaking class now are studying make-up for dramatics. They ordered make-up kits some time ago and now are beginning to learn the use of them.

The kits were purchased from Max Factor in Hollywood and the Main Company in New York.

They began this study by first analyzing their faces, to see how lights affected them. They are now learning to apply the grease paint to bring out their best characteristics.

They are beginning with the so-called "straight make-up." Later they will study the more complicated make-up for old age and other characters, including foreign races.

Charles Baker, the art teacher, is organizing an archery club for the boys and girls who are interested in archery.

He will send for the bows and arrows, and the pupils will make their own bows and arrows.

Mr. Baker has ordered a number of books on archery so the students may learn the phrases used by archers.

A person who is a good archer gets great enjoyment from his bow and arrows. This will be an interesting sport for the people who will take it up.

GRADE NEWS

KINDERGARTEN

Kindergarten students have taken down their store and remodeled their library corner. They new shelves have been added and each has a new coat of red paint.

Some of the children have painted coffee cans and are getting them ready for their flowers and vegetable seeds.

The children like to do sort of work and find it interesting.

FOURTH GRADE

We have had our share of tests. We have had three arithmetic tests. In geography we had a test.

Three pages long. Seven children got their papers on the bulletin board because they made high score.

Yesterday Mr. Stewart gave us a reading test. It was like a game.

Fifteen children got on our honor roll for making at least 10 book reports.

Miss DuBois said we did not get 10 book reports in we would not pass into the fifth grade.

One pupil has made 21 book reports. Library books help us with our reading. The pupils have learned many things from reading different books.

BLUE AND WHITE TEAM DEFEATS HOLLY 32-24

The Farmington basketball team defeated their season by defeating Holly 32-24, Friday evening, February 25. The game was played at home and a large crowd attended.

Holly started the game by scoring on quick field goals but their attack didn't last. Farmington's strong defense was too much for them.

Bandy Banfield and Sam Turner went to work scoring, and at the half the score was 16 to 13 in favor of the blue and white.

Holly was in there fighting gamely to win, but they were no match for Farmington. At one time in the game Holly again took the lead but it didn't last long.

Farmington came right back, and the game ended soon after. In the last quarter Coach Shoemaker took out the whole team and sent in substitutes. The team received a standing ovation as they left the floor.

They might well be proud of their accomplishment this season. Farmington High School's second team emerged victorious in their last game of the season when they defeated the quarter from Holly 24 to 9, in a preliminary game.

The game proved to be top-sided with Farmington holding a large lead over their opponents throughout. Victory was due to the thorough shooting by Bob Cossin, who scored ten points, and Jim Mitchell, who scored nine.

The victory gave the team its eighth win against two losses.

BOARD IS FIGURING ON AMOUNT OF OLD-AGE CREDIT

For the information of many persons inquiring the amount they have over their credits, W. E. Redman, manager of the Pontiac office of the Social Security Board has announced that posting of their wage accounts under the Old-Age Insurance program of the Social Security Act is now under way.

By the end of June the Board expects to be able to answer inquiries of workers as to the status of their wage accounts, and the Board is considering procedures which will make it possible for workers to obtain such information at regular intervals.

Britain Joins New York Fair

NEW YORK—A stirring scene in front of the Administration Building at the New York World's Fair 1939 as the Union Jack of Great Britain is hoisted aloft signifying that John Bull will be represented at America's exposition. The British exhibit will occupy 140,000 square feet, the largest of the 64 foreign displays now being prepared, and will cost several millions.

First Zithers Believed Used in the Swiss Alps

A zither is a harp-like instrument, with the strings stretched over the sounding board, and yet it is not a harp. You pick the strings like a guitar, and yet it is not a guitar. You get pianoforte music out of it, and yet it is not a piano. It is light enough to carry under your arm and you place it flat on the table when you play it, advises a writer in the Los Angeles Times.

Its origin is somewhere back in antiquity and probably the first one played in the Swiss Alps, the mountains of Tyrol or the hills of Bavaria, were patterned after the harp which a few strings. The standard either has five strings for the melody placed parallel over a series of frets that will give as many as four octaves. These are played guitar fashion with the fingers of the left hand, and plucked with a pick on the right thumb.

The four fingers of the right hand must also control as many as 24 and more bass and contrabass strings placed to the right of the melody strings. And playing that many strings for the accompaniment requires some dexterity.

The zither was probably only a five-stringed instrument in the early days, but as time went on they added more and more strings to get better effects and it got so complicated that the number of strings had to be decreased.

Then there were different kinds of tunings of the zither, the Viennese, the Bavarian, and Bohemian tuning, and so on. The standard tunings of the melody strings are a, d, g and c.

Indians' Names Serve as Part of Their Record

Indian children have an infant name for identity, and an "earned" name, usually acquired in the teens, which is given for outstanding achievement or personal idiosyncrasy. A third name is usually given, called a "dream" name, when the recipient has dreamed of his guardian in the spirit world.

The name by which he is best known, however, is the second or "earned" name. An infant Indian name is not associated with any family, as we use a surname, but merely puts a temporary little tag on the child, according to a writer in the Washington Star. It is often rather amusing, such as the name "Two Ways," given an Indian toddler because he went first to the right, then to the left when learning to walk.

When in his teens an Indian boy may distinguish himself with the bow and arrow. Perhaps his aim is so fine that he may hit a mark expertly, even when aiming over his shoulder to the rear. In this case, he will surely be given the achievement name of "Aims Back." Every one will thus know of his cleverness.

Since the American Indians are forced to live in a modern world, full of white people, with names chosen in a different way from their own, many of them have picked American names to their own convenience. So we find such names as Tom Day Rider, Charles Ironbreast, and Mike Little Dog among the Indians.
