A Buying Guide

Before you order a dinner in a restaurant, you consult the bill-of-fare. Before you take a long trip by motor-car, you pour over road maps. Before you start out on a shopping trip, you should consult the advertisements in The Enterprise. For the same reasons!

The advertising columns are a buying guide to you in the purchase of everything you need—including amusements! A guide that saves your time and conserves your energy; that saves useless steps and guards against false ones that put S-T-R-E-T-C-H in family budgets.

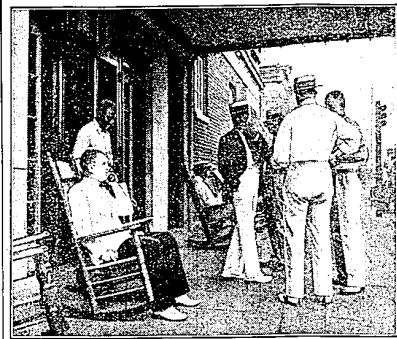

The advertisements in this paper are so interesting, it is difficult to see how anyone could overlook them... fail to profit by them. Just check with yourself and be sure that you are reading the advertisements regularly—the big ones and the little ones. It is time well spent... always.

Southern Hostelry Has Portable Telephones for Chairs on Porch

If a guest at the Daniel Ashley Hotel, at Valdosta, Ga., is comfortably seated on the veranda when a telephone call comes for him, he does not get up and go inside to answer it. Instead, the bellboy brings a portable telephone and the guest answers the call without getting up. A telephone plug is located behind each chair on the porch which front both streets faced by the hotel. The hotel coffee shop likewise has a final touch of modernity offered by portable extension telephones and plugs for tables.

AMERICAN LEGION CONTINUES FLAG EDUCATION

The publicity committee of Grove-Walker Post No. 345 of the American Legion of Farmington submitted the following to the Enterprise:

When flags of states or cities or pennants of societies are flown on the same halyard with the flag of America, the latter should always be at the peak. When flown from adjacent staffs the flag of America should be hoisted first and lowered last. No flag flown in the former position should be placed alone, or in the latter position, which is to the right of the flag, but to the observer's left.

Bunting of the national colors should be used for covering a speaker's desk, for draping over the front of a platform, and in decorations in general. Bunting should be arranged with the blue above, the white next, and the red below.

When flags of two or more nations are displayed, they should be flown from separate staffs of the same height, and the flags should be approximately the same size. International usage forbids the display of the flag of one nation above another in time of peace.

When the flag is displayed from a staff projecting horizontally, or from an angle out of a window, balcony, or front of a building, the union of the flag should extend to the peak of the staff unless the flag is at half mast. (When a flag is suspended over a sidewalk from a rope which extends from the house to a pole at the edge of the sidewalk, the flag should be hoisted from the house toward the pole, union first.)

When the flag is displayed in any manner other than being flown from a staff, it should be displayed flat, whether inside or out.

When displayed either horizontally or vertically against a wall, the union should be uppermost and to the right (which is the observer's left). More on flag education next week.

Fine for Je and Beauty

Aside from the rich, fine-flavored nuts it bears, the hardy, long-lived black walnut (Juglans nigra) is a most desirable ornamental tree—for shade, for planting along driveways or roadsides, or as a single specimen in the yard. It makes an excellent effect when grouped with other hardwoods, observes a writer in the New York Times.

This strikingly handsome tree reaches a height of from 50 to 100 feet; its trunk sometimes measures six feet in diameter. In summer the dark brown bark is in pleasing contrast to the great yellow-green compound leaves. In winter, the tree is noticeable for its straight trunk and the way its limbs form a round-topped head.

Native to the eastern United States and to southern Ontario, the black walnut has been successfully grown in some parts of nearly every state in the Union. However, it thrives only in rich, deep, well-drained clay or loamy soils; and owing to its long taproot it requires continuous moisture.

The young black walnut may be obtained from nurseries, but it may be easily propagated from the nuts, the best results coming from those planted as soon as they ripen in the autumn. The nuts should be planted about two inches deep. If the seedlings are grown in a garden, they should be transplanted when a year old to a spot where they will have sunshine.

How Ethan Allen Became Famous as a War Leader

In the gray of the morning of May 10, 1775, a handful of patriotic Americans—the Green Mountain Boys—arrived on the shore of Lake Champlain, after a march from Bennington. Their leader was Ethan Allen. They appropriated boats, rowed across the foot of the lake and took the British garrison at Fort Ticonderoga completely by surprise. A scurry first at Allen, but missed him. The leader of the Americans met the British commandant, one Captain La Plance, at the door of the barracks occupied by the latter, demanding immediate surrender of the fort.

"By what authority do you make this bold demand?" asked the captain.

"By what authority?" thundered Allen, "I demand it, sir, in the name of the Great Jehovah and the Continental Congress."

It was by this daring act and these immortal words, observed a writer in the Chicago Tribune, that the leader of the Green Mountain Boys became famous. Later in the war he was captured by the British, taken to England, brought back to America, and finally exchanged. He visited Washington at Valley Forge, and was honored in his home town, Bennington, with a salute of 14 guns. He died February 11, 1789, aged fifty-two years, one month, and one day.

Dead Sea Salt Water Lake

The Dead sea is a salt water lake in southern Palestine in which the River Jordan terminates. It is forty-seven miles long, ten miles wide, has a maximum depth of 1,280 feet and an area of 340 square miles. Lying 1,280 feet below sea level, it is the lowest body of water on the earth. Having no outlet, its excess water is taken off by evaporation, estimated at about 6,000,000 tons daily. The salinity is 23 to 27 per cent, which is about five times that of the ocean. The economic value of the salts in solution is great, the principal ones being potash and common salt. The commercial exploitation was begun in 1921. No animal life can exist in its waters.

Gravestones Marked Broad

Count Rumford, the physicist who made "outstanding contributions" to culinary science, began his experiments on baking in ovens made from tombstones, according to a paper read before the American Chemical society. In 1782, the First Presbyterian church of Huntington, Long Island, was torn down and its timbers used to build a British fort in the graveyard by the order of Lieut.-Col. Benjamin Thompson, who later became Count Rumford. The gravestones were used in the construction of the fort, and even Huntington residents, therefore, ate loaves of bread which bore on the lower crusts the reversed inscriptions of the tombstones of their dead friends.

Fish Scales Give Pearly Sheen

"Essence d'Orient," the brilliant coating obtained from the scales of certain fish, is used to give plastics a pearly sheen, says Industrial and Engineering Chemistry. The particles are colorless, nearly transparent, extremely small, and possess a beautiful luster. When suspended in a protective colloid, such as a pyroxyn dispersion, the brilliancy is permanent.
