Rouge Cleanup Aim: Remove 35 Logjams

By W.W. EDGAR

Thirty-five sites have been selected as battlefields when the Jaycees renew their war on pollution with the annual cleanup of the Middle Rouge on Saturday, Sept. 25.

These sites are the logjams which are the crux of the trouble from Northville to Dearborn. In many cases, an expanded army of volunteers will be put to work.

"We have made a survey of the route," Al Thompson, chairman of the Plymouth Jaycee committee, stated "and if we can break through these logjams, much of the work will be accomplished."

Logjams cause several ecological problems. They dam the river, constituting a flood danger. They impound water, reducing the river's ability to cleanse itself and forming stagnant pools where mosquitoes breed. They become unsightly, scummy and smelly.

THOMPSON EXPECTS an army of more than 3,000 volunteers for the big cleanup day. They will come from Northville, Plymouth, Livonia, Westland and Garden City.

"We also are hoping to enlist the Jaycees in Dearborn Heights and Redford," he continued, "and we'll need all the help we can get."

The worst section of the route for logjamming is that area between Merriman and Ann Arbor Trail.

The worst of the jams was located east one quarter of a mile east of Middle Belt Road last year. It was a space about 25 feet by 40 feet and was at least eight feet deep. The Westland group worked in there and among other things found five picnic tables and a boat.

"This was one of three big logjams Westland found a year ago," Thompson explained, "and they finished only two. So, we still have the big one to lick."

ACCORDING TO those in charge of the annual cleanup, these logjams are difficult because they have a high cliff on one side and a jungle on the other. Under these conditions it is most difficult to work.

As in other years, the Jaycees aren't planning to do much with Wilcox Lake that is now infested with weeds. Most of the work will be confined to the area of the Rouge just north of Northville Road at the bridge.

According to Thompson, there will be an increase of manpower this year because it has been made part of a school program.

"In former years we didn't have the students on a school co-operative program. But this has been changed, and we should have quite an army," Thompson remarked.

mission and the County Drain Commission. This help will come in the form of equipment such as chain saws and trucks and, in some cases, supervisory help.

The County Board of Commissioners has appropriated $10,000 to the Drain Commission and $7,500 to the Road Commission for rental of their equipment to aid in the heavier weight lifting jobs.

"But we still need help," Thompson concluded, "and there will be enough work for all who want to join in the war on pollution."
