MERCHANTS' PLACE SECOND IN OWN BALL TOURNAMENT

In what will probably be the final game of the season the Farmington Merchants will meet the Detroit All-Stars of Northville at the Athletic Field Sunday, starting at 2:30. German, who admits to be 62 years young, although according to reports he will never see his 63th birthday. Coach, has promised to be the All-Stars' starting pitcher. Farmington hopes to solve the offerings of this patriarchal wizard for a final victory, but knows it will encounter plenty of difficulty.

The first Invitational Baseball Tournament conducted in Farmington by the Merchants' ball team last week end proved to be a great success, although Farmington came out on the short end in the final game, losing to Walled Lake. Spurred on by the largest crowd of the season attending the championship contest, and a goodly number in attendance at all the games, Manager H. F. Brennan hopes to conduct a similar affair next season.

Thrilling Contest One of the season's most thrilling contests aphy closed the tournament when Walled Lake nosed out Farmington by 2 to 6 score to win first prize money. Conklin, Walled Lake pitcher, hurled masterful ball and had a no-hit, no-run game in his grasp until the ninth inning when Cox, Farmington right fielder, beat out a roller to short.

Himmelspach followed with a safe hit. Two others reached first base, one via a walk, the other by virtue of an error. Only one man saw second. Conklin fanned 15 Farmington batters.

Walled Lake scored their lone tallies in the fourth. After Westphal relieved Couell in that inning the game settled down to a pitcher's battle, but the local cause was lost.

Hartland Loises In the first game of the tournament, played Saturday, the Detroit Commodores easily subdued Hartland 10 to 1. Pitcher Kinzel restricted Hartland to three hits.

Walled Lake played the first of three close games early Sunday afternoon, when after no little struggle they eliminated Novi, 4 to 2.

Although Walled Lake made only five hits, they made hits when they meant runs. Novi, in contrast, got blue safeties. Hanson, of Novi, was the hitting star, with four safe blows.

Farmington disposed of Redford Township in the second game of the day by winning handily 11 to 4. Gus Rosenboom limited Redford to four hits, and struck out 10 batters.

Class Game In the semi-final game Labor Day morning the Walled Lake team finally eked out a 3 to 2 decision over the Commodores in a well played game, with both batters pitching all-right ball. Walled Lake was again outfit, this time by 5 hits to 2.

Three Farmington players were selected on the Tournament All-Star team selected by the managers and the umpire, Bob Lewis, of Bay City. The list follows:

Monument Near Montreal Pays Tribute to Heroine

No episode in Canadian history is more stirring than that of the valiant defense of a fort in the picturesque Canadian village of Vercheres against a marauding band of Croquis Indians about 250 years ago by a fourteen-year-old girl, recalls a writer in the Boston Herald.

Madeleine de Vercheres, the heroine's name and her epic feat is commemorated by a monument to her honor. It stands, only a short distance from the ruins of the fort, as defended at the edge of the St. Lawrence river, 10 miles below Montreal on the south shore of the river.

The fort and blockhouse at Vercheres were besieged in the summer of 1690 by a band of Croquis who massacred the "habitants" working in the fields. The Seigneur de Vercheres and his lady were away but their fourteen-year-old daughter, Madeleine, determined to hold the fort. This she did for a week until the fort was relieved, being aided in her courageous stand by a "parisienne" consisting of an old man of eighty years, her two brothers, aged twelve and ten, and two cowardly soldiers. The Indians supposed that the fort was held by a strong garrison and dared not make a direct attack. They provided about until a force from Montreal drove them away.

The following account of the defense of Vercheres given by Madeleine herself appears in standard Canadian history books: "I placed my brothers on two of the bastions, the old man on the third, and I took the fort. All night in spite of the rain and hail, all of 'All's well' were kept up. One could have thought the place was full of soldiers. I may say with truth that I did not eat or sleep for twice 24 hours but kept always on the bastions. I kept a cheerful and smiling face to encourage my little company with hope of speedy success."

'Penalty Oaths' Are of Several Different Kinds The saucer wouldn't break, so a Chinese witness in a Cambridge (England) court had a hard time promising to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth. Breaking the dish was his way of saying his soul also would break if he lied.

Such oaths, when a person swears to tell the truth under pain of punishment if he lies, are called "ally oaths," and take many different forms, observes a writer in the Washington Post.

For instance, in Assam province, India, witnesses grasp a dog or chicken cut in half with one bite. This implies the same fate will strike them if they testify falsely. Another Indian region has the speaker stand within a circle of rope. He'll get like rope, it's believed, if he commits perjury.

Sometimes the head of a tiger, bear or other fierce animal is brought to "court" in Siberia and Africa. Those involved in a suit call upon the animal to kill them if they lie.

William the Conqueror swore "by the splendor of God," and King John "by God's teeth."

Daddy of the Holidays It is to King Edgar that we owe the holidays which fall at Easter, Whitson, and Christmas, as well as our half-holidays, such as Saturdays, observes a writer in London's Bits Magazine. King Edgar lived in the Tenth century and was responsible for many sane laws and reforms. In his day noon was about three in the afternoon, at which hour Nones were recited. Later hours were moved to midday and periodically the people were given a half-holiday for the purpose of praying. Unfortunately the religious observance gave way to boisterous revelry, and the authorities stopped the weekly half-holiday. It was not until the Nineteenth century that half-holidays and certain festivals were observed.

Mustard Grows Everywhere. No spice or condiment has a longer history than the mustard seed. Probably in ancient days next to salt it was used more than any other seasoning. The reason for this lies in the fact that it is a cosmopolitan plant and grows in many places. The tiny seeds, which may be brown or yellow, are used in their own form for pickling, pickles and fruits and for a few other purposes. The ground mustard flour which we know as dry mustard is one of our staple condiments. Then we have a large variety of mixed mustards which vary in flavor, both on account of the kind of mustard which is their base and because of the liquids which are used to blend them. This is often vinegar and sometimes wine.

Slandering the Pig We often say someone is "a dirty pig," but little do we realize that we are slandering the poor pig. This little animal is naturally clean and will not rove or sleep in filth unless nothing better is available. Pigs are among the cleanest of all farm animals if allowed to be so, asserts a writer in Pearson's London Weekly. Many are "dirty" because their owners force them to live and bathe in dirty places. Neither is the pig more lazy than other animals, if allowed his freedom.

Sir Skunk Proves Himself a Gentleman

Proof that a skunk can be a gentleman who (greater to properly) can be observed at the Ludington state park.

Among permanent residents of the park are about a dozen skunks and seven raccoons and Harold Cowan, superintendent reports that none of the animals has yet violated any rule of correct conduct. Each evening the animals make a round of the camps in the park. The skunks have become so tame that they go right into tents and pick up crumbs that drop under the tables. The raccoons feed at the garbage cans placed at each camp site.

New visitors to the park follow the animals around in the evening, using flashlights to observe their activities.

Thus far no incident has been reported of any of the animals showing any disposition to charge anyone, apparently being quite contented with their easy life.

"Yosemite" Indian Name California's Yosemite Valley gets its name from the Indian word for "grizzly bear," "uzumaldi."

"Moving Days" The average family in a representative community will move seven times in ten years.

Damage by Pine Beetle The pine beetle causes average loss of $1,000,000 a year in southern states.

There are 7,000 telephones in Radio City, in New York—about the same number as there are in cities the size of Meriden or Middletown, Conn.

At the beginning of 1933, the number of Bell System and Bell connecting telephones in Wisconsin totaled about $300. This represents an increase over the preceding year of approximately 25,000.
