

CHILDREN MAY BE ELIGIBLE FOR SS PAYMENTS

Children of workers who have died since December 31, 1939, are in certain cases entitled to monthly payments in their own right, under the amended Social Security Act. These payments may be made to children, adopted children or step children of individuals who were insured under the Social Security Act at the time of death.

Children who are attending school regularly may obtain the payments until they reach age 18, while those who are not regularly attending school may only receive the payments until they reach age 16. It is necessary to submit proof to show that children between 16 and 18 years of age are regularly attending school, in order that they may obtain their monthly payments.

Cooperation of school officials is needed in such cases. The Social Security Board has simplified procedure in filing this proof, so that not more than duplicate copies of two forms need to be completed.

These forms are known as Social Security Board Forms OA-27 and OA-C-72. The first is completed by an authorized school official and includes an agreement under which that official will notify the local field office of the Social Security Board immediately when a pupil of this group ends his period of school attendance.

Children are usually considered in regular attendance during vacation periods or between school vacations, if they were in attendance at the end of the term preceding the vacation. It is suggested that the file of such children between the ages of 16 and 18 be flagged or so marked that termination of attendance will not be overlooked.

Local field offices of the Social Security Board will furnish copies of both forms for school authorities as need for proof arises. Self-addressed envelopes requiring no postage will be furnished for convenience in mailing the forms.

Procedure in handling this matter has been approved by this department and by the Social Security Board.

There Were Two Irishmen—

By J. Y. BARBER
(Metropolitan Syndicate—WNU Service.)

SEUMAS GAVAN was Number One man and the only Irishman in the neighborhood who wasn't the whifler of a doubt about that. On Monday he lamented the need of hiring a dog to tend bar for him in his South street saloon. It was Saturday he was dead of it. Irishmen aren't temperamental suited for co-operative occupations; they won't do as they're told. He was glad his blue-eyed Kathleen never argued with her father.

Way back in the ancestry there may have been some weak strain that accounted for her passivity. In dressed and undressed she never knew that he was the only Irishman in the word. The only man of intellect and discernment he'd almost say, except for that leavened son of the streets, Adolphus Gownzer, whose insufferable expostures appeared now and again between the scrofulous lines of the local paper.

'Twas a black day indeed when he saw that Adolphus Gownzer in the bar where Kathleen had no business at all. And a curse on the day when she came to her kind old father, who was a little bit filled with worry over trying to get a respectable liquor license, to ask his good will to their marriage.

"He's not the man," Seumas said abruptly.

"Isn't he the man?" Kathleen said, too quietly even for her.

"He's the sort," said Seumas, "who writes about people that have died of murder, and it's raining, and he is when he blackguards some worthy citizen in public life."

Seumas knew he would have no trouble with gentle Kathleen.

"She was not, she said, let him alone. She says why she wouldn't and it took her five minutes to say it.

"But, but, he's a drinking man, he is," Seumas said, with a look like a fish and he be good at all."

"Aye," said Kathleen, "and that coming from you! May God have mercy on your soul for the narrowness of your mind. You'd little to do to speak of that when it's your own grog he drinks. And it isn't true that he's no good. He's the best fellow I ever saw in the town. And I like him. I love him!"

The debate had reached a point where Seumas realized he would have to assert himself. He leaned forward in his chair. He hissed quietly. "I could break him. You know my power when I want to use it. Frame him! How would you like that?"

But Kathleen never moved. She looked at her father boldly. "Aye," she said. "Well, two can play at that game—it's a fight you're looking for!" And with that she ran from the room and out of the house and he didn't see her for days. The shame of it!

"I want to see her just try and marry that spalpeen," Seumas said to himself all day on Friday. Customers heard him as he whispered under his breath. They thought he was reciting the list of witnesses who would appear when he came up for his license hearing on the morrow and they let him concentrate.

But Seumas had forgotten all about the hearing until his attorney came down and took him to court. His reception there lulled him to contentment. Mr. Gavan was well then in the court in certain circles. Not for long, however, did he smile benignly this way and that. His bright green eyes froze to the witness box. For there in the middle of everything sat Adolphus Gownzer.

Not being familiar with the expediences of the newspaper business Seumas didn't know that Adolphus had merely wandered in there in the course of his routine and that in ten minutes he would be discovered by a court attaché and thrown out on his neck. Seumas' pain was so great that he beat himself upon the chest. Could Kathleen have been so angry then to put this notorious poster on him?

"I'm going home," he said to his attorney. "I'm sick now. No, I don't care about the license; to hell with it!" And so Mr. Gavan went home feeling the powder in out of him with every step of the way.

Evening came to Seumas Gavan in the little office that he maintained upstairs. He sat sullenly beside the speaking tube that connected his office with the bar and he wished that he had anticipated Kathleen being at least half an Irishman. That was bitter, bitter! He wished him very sorry. So sorry was he that he failed to hear the buzzer until its third buzz.

The bartender's voice rumbled dimly to him through the tube:

"Seumas's come home."

"Aye," Seumas said noncommittally. He was abruptly the old Seumas and he had the look of a hawk over a call. It would be novel and he would be brief but annihilating. The bartender took up a familiar refrain:

"Adolphus Gownzer wants to know if he's good for your daughter—and he wants to congratulate you on getting your license today, sir!" It was incredible!

"Ha—have I got it?"

"You have!"

"He lat!"

KIPNIS REPLACES TIBBETT IN MAY FESTIVAL, MAY 8

President Charles A. Sink of the University Musical Society, has just announced that Mr. Alexander Kipnis, distinguished Russian bass of the Metropolitan Opera Association, will participate in the Wednesday evening May Festival concert in Hill Auditorium, Ann Arbor, May 8, taking the place of Lawrence Tibbett, who has been obliged to rest for three weeks on doctors' orders.

Mr. Kipnis will sing the identical program arranged for Mr. Tibbett. He was born in South Russia. During the World War he interned in Germany, came to the United States in 1921, sang in the Chicago Civic Opera, married an American girl and became an American citizen. He returns annually to Europe for guest performances at Bayreuth and Salzburg. For the past two years he has been heard at the International Music Festival in Lucerne at the invitation of Toscanini. Next to John McCormack he has made more fine recordings than any other singer. His appearances this season at the Metropolitan Opera have been sensational, and those who have heard his recital in Ann Arbor in December, have been unanimous in their plaudits.

METHODIST CHURCH PLANS RELIGIOUS DRAMA FESTIVAL

Five plays will be featured at the religious drama festival to take place Saturday, at the Farmington Methodist church, according to Rev. D. C. Stubbs, pastor. The plays are to be given under the auspices of the Religious Drama Festival by members of the Methodist young people's groups from the Ann Arbor district.

At 2:30 p. m. there will be a worship service followed by three plays, "The Good Old Days" presented by the Historical Ann Arbor Epworth League; "Plum Blossoms" by the Japanese Ann Arbor Intermediate Girls; and "Old Candlermaker of St. Johns" by Morality Flat Rock Epworth League.

Two more productions will be given later in the day. They are "A Net is Cast" by the Temperance Friends Epworth League; and "The Thane" by the World Friendship Newburg Epworth League.

No admission will be charged but a free-will offering will be taken at each session.

Atlantic City Beauty Pageant last summer as the loveliest of all American girls. Miss Donnelly has graciously accepted an invitation to some of Southwestern Michigan this spring to join in the Blossomtime celebration.

Miss Donnelly will be at the Liberty theater in Benton Harbor the evening of Monday, May 6, when the Queen of Blossomtime will be chosen.

When the Blossom Queen receives the symbol of sovereignty that makes her ruler of the Blossom Empire, it will be Miss America who will officiate at her coronation, and who will bestow the crown, at the annual Coronation ceremonies, on Tuesday night.

The annual Blossom Ball, in the Shadownad pavilion in St. Joseph will have Miss America as its guest of honor, and she will take part in other Blossom Festival events during the week.

MOTHERS

PROTECT YOUR TEETH

CHILDREN need our new Vitamin D Milk which is so helpful in warding off rickets. Mothers need it also—but for another reason:

To Mothers it is a protection to the teeth—especially before childbirth and during the nursing period thereafter.

Nature, at that trying time, draws heavily on the minerals in the Mother's body to supply her baby's needs.

Tooth decay and bone decalcification may result unless calcium (lime) and phosphorus are provided her for fortification in the diet.

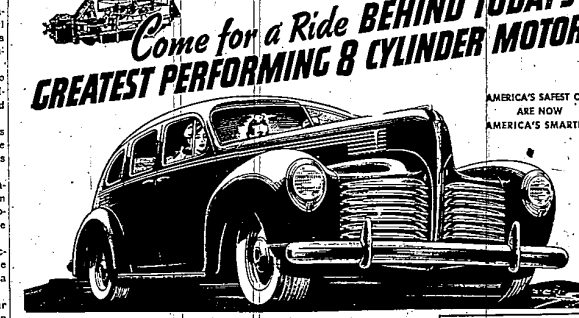

Vitamin D Milk gives this protection. Mother's diet at such time should include not less than a quart per day.

Our Vitamin D Milk is our regular grade of milk which has been made more nutritious by the addition of Vitamin D (activated ergosterol).

Spray Now
USE DU PONT
INSECTICIDES and FUNGICIDES

● Proper spraying practice with quality materials will result in less crop losses and higher yields. Start right with DU PONT Spray Products—preferred by growers everywhere.

PRE-PINK
DU PONT Lime Sulfur Solution plus NuREXFORM Lead Arsenate will control Scab, Curculio and Bud Moth. If Aphids have not been controlled at this time the addition of Black Leaf 40™ is recommended.

PINK APPLICATION AND PETAL FALL
DU PONT Lime Sulfur Solution plus NuREXFORM Lead Arsenate should be used for the control of Apple Scab, Curculio, and other chewing insects. In the petal fall application most growers prefer to use a milder fungicide for Scab control. Boration Sulfur Paste or SULFORON can be substituted for Liquid Lime Sulfur, as both of these finely divided products have given excellent Scab control under severe conditions in the past.

Use Grasselli Spray Products for better crop protection.
