KELLY UNCOVERS FRAUDS IN AUTO TITLE SALES

The practice of some automobile dealers, and automobile purchasers of giving fictitious names or addresses, or both, in making application for a certificate of title is to be halted, according to a warning issued by Secretary of State Harry F. Kelly. The matter was brought to his attention by the Michigan Automobile Trade Association, an organization of new car dealers.

"The Motor Vehicle Law gives the Secretary of State authority to stop such practices and if need be I will not hesitate to use this authority in prosecuting the guilty dealers or individuals," Kelly said. "It may mean that a number of certificates of title will be revoked."

Certain automobile manufacturers have noted the state in assigning dealerships and a dealer is not permitted to sell cars outside of his allotted territory. In order to avoid the possibility of being charged with infringement if he sold a car to a resident of another dealer's territory, the offending dealer either on his own accord, or with the knowledge of the purchaser, gives a fictitious address and sometimes both name and address in his own territory.

"It would seem on the face of it that this is no concern of the State, but the Secretary of State is charged by law with keeping an accurate list of all automobile registrations which must be furnished monthly to the law enforcement agencies," Kelly said. "Obviously if a fictitious address, or name and address is given my department when application is made for a certificate of title, the registration of the automobile described on the application is incorrect and of no value to us or to the law enforcement officers should occasion arise calling for an investigation in an accident case that might involve serious injury or death, sometimes the only way the identity of the persons involved can be determined is through tracing the automobile license number. It would seem to be, therefore, that the purchaser of an automobile should always be sure that his correct name and address is given in his application for title."

Kelly said that while such cases are few, considering the total registration in the State, they are sufficient in number to cause considerable concern. The Michigan Automobile Trade Association is cooperating with the State in stamping out the evil.
