DUST PROTECTS DAHLIAS

With summer troubles, due for Dahlias a simple remedy, suggested by Professor E. I. McDaniel at Michigan State College may ald gardeners. Red spider and learn hoppers are two of the worst dahla pests. The leaf hopper can be controlled by dusting, with lime. If the mites or red spiders appear, combine the lime with suphin dust and the plants will be protected against either pest.

Changes in Industry

Speeded Up by Science

Many years ago Lord Kelvin said that in order to understand anything one must measure it. Industry on the whole was rather slow to learn the leason, but today there is a new similar to the leason, but to the property of the leason, but to the property of the work of the industrial and engineering 6eld.

To take a few examples from the railways: The comfortable riding of rail cacepes, the sources of noise, the movement of a wheel along the rails when under load, and the ray of the rails when under load, and the ray of the rails when under load, and the ray of the rails when under load, and the ray of the rails when under load, and the ray of the rails when under load, and the ray of the rails when under load, and the ray of the rails when under load, and the ray of the rails when under load, and the ray of the rails when under load, and the ray of the rails when under load and the ray of the rails when under load and the ray of the rails when under load and the ra

Women Run Hospitals
For many a year, women have claimed as their own the high executive positions in the profession of hospital administration.

Dr. Malcolm T. MacEachern, di-rector of the American College of Surgeons, pointed this out recently.

rector of the American College of Surgeons, pointed this out recently.

"The reason for this," said Dr. MacEachern, "is the close relationship between oursing and hospital administration. Nurse executives are concerned with the problems of the spital administration and thus are prepared for the duties of hospital management."

The high percentage of women in the profession, bettieves Miss Melie G. Brown, superintendent of Bail Memorial hospital, Munice, Ind., the famed "Middletoym." is due to so the spital management.
