COUNTIES' NAMES WILL NOT APPEAR ON AUTO PLATES

Names of counties will not appear on the 1941 maroon and white Michigan license plates, Harry F. Kelly Secretary of State, announces.

This decision was reached following tests at the General Motors Testing ground at Milford, which showed that the name of the county would fill up the plate and therefore, reduce the visibility.

"There is no need for the county name on a plate, anyway," said Mr. Kelly, "because the serial letters tell law enforcement officers or any one else who is interested enough to inquire, what county and branch office the plates came from."

Mr. Kelly has been appointed chairman of a committee of the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators to continue experiments as to what license plate sizes and colors are most readily visible. Michigan received this honor because it is the first state to adopt a uniform licensing system under which special plates are not issued, even to the highest officials or most prominent and influential citizens.

Highway Employes to Get Salary Raises

The state highway department this week announced salary raises for 98 employes effective as of July 1.

State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner said that the total amount of the raises would be $1,170 a month which makes the average increase a little less than $12.00 a month.

"The number of raises which we approved for submission to the budget director was held to a very minimum," Van Wagoner said. "Our division heads recommended a total of 121 salary adjustments which was reduced to 98 of which 44 are hourly wage workers receiving an average increase of 5¢ an hour. No raises were awarded to employes receiving more than $2,400 annually."

Shrubs are being planted at considerable cost along main highways, to beautify them, while some counties and townships still are paying to have them cut down on little used country roads, where they provide good game cover without the hazard of heavy traffic.

Detroit Players to Give "Quarantined" July 26

Coming to the front with a really humorous play, the Stagecrafters, a group of young stage aspirants who have already worked up a regular following since their past three years of strenuous efforts, will present "Quarantined," a cyclone of fun, brimful of quick, snappy action that keeps the audience in a trance of laughter and appreciation of beautifully merited work on the part of all.

This performance is being sponsored by the Expression School of Speech and Drama, and presented in Findlater Hall, 6705 West Lafayette Boulevard at Waterman, on Friday evening, July 26th at 8:00 p. m.

Those taking part in the play are: the peppy fire-fly Terry Allen, who won outstanding mention from her audience in previous plays. With her will be the well-known Beulah Bray, who already has a following of her own. Dorothy Walters and Alice Antone are old timers whose work stands out professionally. Stuart Strong again comes to the audience in one of his best roles as the doctor playing opposite Robert McKenna, who is a whirl-wind of "oomph." Gerry Harrington as the spoiled husband, is a scream. The lead will be nip and tuck between these young actors. Others offering their assistance are none other than June Bachman, who lead the Society Bee, and Lucille Hayes, Constance Borders, Gloria Hoff, Sonny Mathews, Bob Atkins, and Charlie MacComish.

AGRICULTURE DEPT. BEGINS SPRAYING OF JAP BEETLES

With the approach of August, the Department of Agriculture is preparing to begin its spraying program in the battle against the Japanese Beetle it was announced this week by Commissioner Elmer A. Beamer. Trapping has been carried on throughout July in an effort to locate this dreaded insect.

"It might be well," said Beamer "for the people to know a little more about this serious insect pest and why the department is interested in combating it. The adult Japanese Beetle is a brightly colored insect, broadly oval, and about three-eighths of an inch long. It is a brilliant metallic green except for the greater part of the wing covers, which are a reddish bronze. This insect emerges from the soil some time after July 1 in Michigan and remains in the beetle stage some thirty to forty-five days, during which time it feeds on the foliage and fruits of some two hundred or more species of plants. It is particularly fond of feeding on the fruits of apple, plum, peach, cherry, raspberry and blueberry and upon the foliage of grapes, linden, elms and horsechestnut. It is in this stage that we carry on a trapping program.

"After feeding the female beetle returns into the ground where she usually deposits around fifty eggs during her lifetime. These eggs hatch out in about two weeks after they are laid into a grub or larvae. The larvae feeds on the roots of grasses and legumes and oftentimes attacks the roots of iris, peonies, gladiolus and strawberries. It is during the larvae stage that we carry on our spraying program to kill the beetles. Arsenate of lead is sprayed on the soil within a radius of 300 feet of a trap where a beetle has been caught at the rate of 1,000 pounds per acre and is washed into the soil with an application of water.

"In some other states," he continued," entire orchards, gardens, golf courses, and lawns have been destroyed by this insect and it is only through great effort and serious planning that we have confined it to the Detroit area in Michigan and there we are continuing the battle against it."

Scientist in 'Cold Storage' Phones His Findings, Spares His Fingers

Studying insects in a cold storage plant, Dr. Max Demorest could not make notes of his observations because his fingers quickly became too numb with cold to hold a pencil. Then he had a telephone installed in his "ice box laboratory." Now his wife writes his notes for him at home as he gives them to her over the wire, and his fingers—and hers—are comfortably warm.

In a New Haven, Conn., cold storage plant, where the thermometer never goes higher than 15 degrees above zero, Dr. Max Demorest, a geologist at Yale University, is studying the crystalline structure and "flow" of glacial ice with the aid of a telephone.

Last summer Dr. Demorest carried on his research in a hut beside a glacier on Mount Rainier, Wash. He returned east with 350 pounds of the glacier and found the cold storage plant an almost ideal laboratory.

There was just one catch. When Dr. Demorest tried to make notes in his frigid workshop, his fingers quickly got numb. A telephone was the solution. At the other end of the line, in the comfort of her home, Mrs. Demorest records her husband's dictated observations, and Dr. Demorest can keep his gloves on.

Why should a geologist, whose general field of study is the history of the earth, particularly as recorded in rocks, be interested in glacial ice? Because, although glacial ice is a solid, it flows—although very slowly. Thus it affords scientists a comparison with the "flow" of rocks far underground.

INSPECTORS TO MEET

Commissioner of Agriculture Elmer A. Beamer this week announced that there will be a meeting of township fruit inspectors in Berrien county on July 30. The meeting is being called for the study of peach tree diseases.

Practically all of Michigan's larger rivers are used for the production of electric power.

FATHER'S VOICE BY PHONE RALLIES SON FROM DEATH

In the Manchester Royal Infirmary, in England, a thirty-year-old medical student, Hamed Bey Shaker, was so ill that doctors thought his case hopeless. The young man's last wish was to speak with his father, 2,000 miles away in Egypt. Hospital authorities arranged for the telephone call, and at the sound of his father's voice Shaker rallied amazingly. The call cost ten pounds, but it saved the young man's life.
