

RURAL TELEPHONES TO BE FINANCED BY INSTALLMENTS

The Public Service Commission this week extended the installment plan to the financing of rural telephone construction...

Always in the past, these charges had to be paid in a lump sum in advance of construction. Friends of the plan cited other advantages...

Simple Simon

By JANE OSBORN

FOOLISH to get down to your last gallon of gasoline. Kate knew it, but when you are down to your last quarter there is nothing else to do...

And Kate wouldn't have stopped if she hadn't been distracted by the sight of a dignified looking young man sitting on the edge of the highway...

Kate was so amazed that she slowed down—slowed down and stopped. Then she looked at the young man. Humble he must be...

"What are you doing?" she asked with much gentleness of the apparently harmless idiot.

"Fishing for a whale," he said without a smile. "That really," she repeated, "what are you sitting there for?"

"Fishing for a whale," said the young man placidly. She looked thoroughly frightened, jumped into the car and sped off.

"I'm harmless," he assured her. "I can help you perhaps. Fool procedure for a man of my age. But on one is looking. Is your battery dead?"

Much relieved Kate explained her difficulty, explained too that she hadn't intended to stop but had slowed up to look at Simon. They were a mile from a gas station...

He looked at his watch. Some of the lizards would be asleep presently at the college and he carried his bag to get him and carry him back to college...

So Kate went a little out of her way to take him back—finding room in the car for the pair and she wanted to know more about the young man who seemed somewhat to old, too well poised, for the average freshman...

Kate's brother was a sophomore in the same nearby college and that evening she asked him all about the hazing.

He told her with some relish of some of the absurd tasks set for the freshmen. "But there's one fellow named Simon—Simon Baldwin—he has to fish for whales in a pull-down boat on the lake. I've never heard of it before," she said.

"Just who is this Simon Baldwin?" asked Jane. "I'd like to meet him."

"Well, chance," explained the brother. "He's much too influential to bother with college dazes. Why he's one of the big Baldwin's—no end of money—some place. I'll have to come to college for a fellow like that."

Kate insisted on knowing all about it so her brother explained. At the age when other boys were studying abroad—no regular university course—just studying languages and seeing the world. Then he came home and went into business—the big Baldwin works. He had done big things there for a man of twenty-six.

"If you have any influence with your class, get them to stop the hazing," said Kate. Her brother objected that to do that would lead his classmates to suspect he was toadying to the Baldwin millions.

"Tell them that he is a very good friend of your sister's," said Kate. "Mr. Simon Baldwin is coming to call in a day or so. And some sophomore Mr. Baldwin's brother did get his classmates to stop hazing Simon Baldwin—and a few evenings later Simon called on Kate. Before the mid-term Kate and Simon were engaged.

"Well, just be married," said Simon. "I'll give you up here at college. I wanted to do it but I want to do this year. Then he came home and went into business—the big Baldwin works. He had done big things there for a man of twenty-six.

Political Signs Barred From State Highways

State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wageningen this week advised candidates of both parties against placing advertising signs on state highways.

Van Wageningen stated maintenance workers had been instructed to remove all political advertising signs and posters found within truckline rights-of-way daily hereafter.
